Sent Into Debate After Narrowly Escaping Death on Two Earlier Votes

By Edward Ryan

Post Reporter

Washington home rule legislation cleared its first House hurdle yesterday by a 177 to 147 roll-call vote that spells bitter fighting before the final decision.

The 30-vote margin sent the Acheson bill for reorganizing the District government and granting limited home rule here into general debate that will continue shortly after the House resumes its session at 10 a. m. today.

But the margin was slim enough to make friends and foes of the bill cautious about predicting the final outcome.

Cause for their caution came before the final roll-call when the House twice voted to block the home rule measure for good. These were preliminary votes, one a voice vote, the next a standing vote which showed 73 to 66 for killing the bill. The standing vote, revealing lack of a quorum, made the roll call automatic. The roll call reversed the two preliminary votes.

Two Hours of General Debate It placed the bill before the House under a resolution from the Rules Committee saying that there will be two hours of general debate on the bill. Forty minutes of the time passed. General debate will be followed by wide-open procedure for amending the bill but barring all points of order. Defeat of the resolution would have blocked further action in this Congress. Foes of home rule made a smashing drive to do that, and lost.

The home rule bill, on which the House will make its decision, probably today, calls for giving Washington an elected city council, an elected school board, and a nonvoting delegate in the House. Congress and the President would continue to pass on major legislation for the District.

House Republican leadership has been thrown strongly behind the home rule bill. Yesterday's roll call, however, showed a break in the lines of both parties, with these results:

There were 129 Republicans for letting the bill go into debate, and 61 Republicans for blocking it. On the Democratic side, there were 48 for letting the bill go ahead, and 88 for stopping it.

House passage of the bill would send it to the Senate. House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), leading the fight for the bill, said he could not predict on the basis of yesterday's vote whether home rule will pass the House.

Not Particularly Encouraged Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), former District Committee chairman leading the fight against the bill, said he was not "particularly encouraged" by the vote—"as far as I know people who voted for the bill are clearing the measure for debate will vote for the bill."

Two other sponsors of the home rule bill, Representatives John J. Allen (R., Calif.) and Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.), predicted the bill will pass.

Cotton Dips $7.50 At New Orleans

New York, May 24 (AP)—Cotton nose-dived $5.05 a bale in New York and $7.50 in New Orleans today and then recovered some of the loss. The break followed a weekend announcement that the Government had temporarily halted shipments abroad pending development of a financing plan under the Economic Cooperation Administration.

July deliveries of old cotton crop supplies showed the greatest loss before closing $3.05 to $3.15 a bale in New York and $2.95 in New Orleans. Deliveries of the new crop gained strength rapidly from their low point and closed off 30 to 75 cents a bale in New York and 25 to 75 cents in New Orleans.

2d Career Man in Cabinet

Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday appointed Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Charles Franklin Brannan to succeed Clinton P. Anderson as Agriculture Secretary.

The 44-year-old former Denver attorney is the second Government career man to be chosen for a Cabinet post by President Truman within the past six months.

The first was Jesse M. Donaldson, one-time letter carrier, who was named Postmaster General last November to succeed Robert E. Hannegan.

The appointment of Brannan, an employee of the Agriculture Department since 1935, was hailed throughout the Department as an excellent choice.

On Capitol Hill, where the Senate must confirm Brannan, the appointment appeared popular and likely to meet with little opposition.

Anderson, who resigned May 10 to run for the Senate in New Mexico, said yesterday he was "very highly pleased" at the nomination.

It is known that Anderson had strongly recommended the appointment. Brannan started as an assistant regional attorney for the Department in his native Denver in 1935.

He has been assistant secretary since June, 1944.

Last year President Truman sent Brannan's name to the Senate as a member of the Indian Claims Commission.

Secretary Anderson, however, protested the nomination to Mr. Truman on the ground that he needed Brannan in the Department.

Anderson got Brannan to request the President to withdraw his name, which he did. The assistant secretary remained in the Department to take on important tasks for Anderson.

At a press conference yesterday, Brannan told reporters that if he is confirmed by the Senate he will try to follow Anderson's policy.

"Secretary Anderson was a very able administrator," Brannan said. "If I can keep up the momentum he started I will consider myself very fortunate."

Brannan's appointment ended many weeks of speculation as to who would get the cabinet post.

Southern congressmen had been backing Representative John W. Flanagan, Virginia Democrat, who formerly headed the House Agriculture Committee, for the job.

Others who had been mentioned included Norris E. Dodd, who had been assistant secretary of the Department to take on important tasks for Anderson.

Truman Asks Training Plan Broader Age Security Law Youths, 18

Would Increase Ceiling on Taxed Earnings to $4800 To Finance Plan

By Robert C. Albright

Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday recommended a five-point expansion of the Social Security laws and increased taxes to finance the program.

In a special message to Congress, he said the present period of high employment and earnings is an "opportunity" time to broaden the program and substantially raise the contribution rates.

Would Raise Ceiling To assure an excess of income over outgo in the social insurance trust funds, Mr. Truman recommended:

1. That the ceiling on earnings taxed for social security purposes be raised from the present $3000 to $4800 a year.

2. That the date for increasing the tax rate from one per cent to 1½ per cent be moved forward from January 1, 1950, to January 1, 1949.

The net effect of raising the taxable earnings ceiling would be to increase the tax from $30 to $48 a year for persons earning $4800 and more. This would climb to $72 when the 1½ per cent rate becomes effective.

Sweeping Changes Asked Mr. Truman called for sweeping improvements to the Social Security structure, coverage for some 20 million more persons and a 50 per cent increase in the present average of about $25 a month paid retired workers.

He reminded Congress that for three years he has been making similar recommendations. Instead of acting, he said, Congress is considering removing protection from "many persons now entitled to its benefits."

Mr. Truman apparently was referring to House-approved legislation exempting some salesmen, independent miners and newspaper subscription solicitors from coverage. Congress recently passed over the President's veto a bill exempting news vendors from social security.

Urging adjustments in benefits to keep pace with rising living costs, he proposed that women become eligible for old-age benefits at 60 instead of 65. He proposed that pensioners be permitted to earn up to $40 a month in part-time employment, instead of $15 as at present, without losing benefits.

Other Recommendations Mr. Truman's other recommendations provide:

Unemployment insurance coverage for Federal Government workers, independent employees of small firms. He said it seems absurd that the Federal Government does not provide to its employees the same protection that private employers are required to furnish to their employees.

More adequate unemployment insurance benefits, particularly for jobless persons with families to support. He said some States already have raised benefits and extended duration of payments to meet present conditions and all States should do so.

President Nominates Woman To Serve as Member of FCC

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday proposed to give the Federal Communications Commission its first woman member.

The President nominated Miss Frieda B. Hennock, New York City attorney. Her name was sent to the Senate for a seven-year FCC membership in succession to Commissioner Clifford J. Durr.

Durr's term expires June 30. A Franklin D. Roosevelt appointee, Durr has notified Mr. Truman that he does not wish reappointment.

He has recently been an outspoken critic of Administration policy in the loyalty check being made among Federal employees.

Mrs. Durr announced several weeks ago that she would take an active part in the Henry Wallace campaign for the Presidency.

Miss Hennock has been a lawyer in New York for more than 20 years, specializing in corporation practice. She has never tried a case before the Communications Commission, but has been identified with court actions in the radio field in New York.

Friends here said she is close to the Democratic organization in her home State and was active in Mayor Dwyer's city campaign.

Since 1941 she has been a member of the firm of Choate, Mitten and Ely, New York corporation lawyers. From 1935 to 1938 she was assistant counsel to the New York State Mortgage Commission.

Senator Gurney Acts in Effort To Speed Passage Of 19-25 Draft

By John G. Norris

Post Reporter

Compulsory military training of 18-year-old youths was definitely abandoned on Capitol Hill yesterday in an effort to speed passage of the 19-through-25-year draft.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee introduced an amendment to the selective service bill killing the 12 months' draft for 18-year-olds.

Limited numbers of youths that age, however, still would be permitted to volunteer for a year's training and service in continental United States, followed by four to six years in the reserve. This would exempt them from later induction for the regular 24 months' draft.

Gurney polled his committee before presenting the amendment. All of those reached—11 of the group's 13 members—favored dropping the proviso, he said.

Senators on the committee still believe in the plan or some other universal military training proposal. They believe we can never get rid of the regular draft and large standing forces without some means of building up sizable reserve force.

The plan or something like it, therefore, may be revived next year. But with sentiment in the House almost solidly opposed to coupling the draft with any form of mandatory training for 18-year-olds, and many Senate GOP chiefs taking the same stand, the proviso promised only to endanger the regular draft bill.

Present Provisions As the Senate committee's bill now stands, 161,000 18-year-old boys could volunteer for a year's training and service in the United States. Defense chiefs believe they'll get more than enough applications to fill the billets from youths who would rather fulfill their liability this way than wait to be drafted for two years probable overseas service.

Whether the House will accept this voluntary plan is not yet clear. Republican leaders in the lower chamber said the Representatives are strongly against coupling the draft with any form of teen-age training. But they say they do not know what the House will do with this proviso.

Some members of the House Armed Services Committee predicted the voluntary 18-year-old training plan will be voted down by the lower body.

Major Differences Revived Yesterday's action of the Senate committee, however, made it likely that there will be no last-minute deadlock over the controversial 18-year draft.

It removes the major difference between the Senate and House bills. Both measures now call for drafting 19-through-25-year-olds for two years of service and exempt or defer men with dependents, most veterans, members of active reserve units, high school

400 Cheer Israel's President, Here on Truman's Invitation

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, 73, provisional president of the newly proclaimed Jewish State of Israel, came to Washington yesterday for a White House conference at the invitation of President Truman.

Cheered and applauded by some 400 admirers, the noted chemist and Zionist leader arrived in Union Station at 5:30 p. m. He was accompanied by his wife and a small delegation.

The broad-shouldered Israeli, wearing a gray business suit and a matching tie, was met by Stanley Woodward, chief of protocol at the State Department, and Eliahu Epstein, head of the Washington office of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

The White House conference may take up proposed lifting of the arms embargo in the Middle East as well as the appointment of Epstein as minister of the new State.

Ropes were placed in front of the Union Station crowds, but that didn't keep them from waving Israel's ancient Star of David flag or shouting. Many would have kissed and hugged him if they had been permitted.

But Dr. Weizmann had no strength for such activities. Ailing and accompanied by a nurse, he was shielded from the throngs. But he accepted a key to the city—presented by Charles Stofberg, assistant to the District Commissioner—and the blessings of Rabbi Joshua Klavan, dean of the orthodox rabbis here.

Later, as cameras clicked and the crowds pushed in, he smiled broadly and spoke. The balding leader expressed his "heartfelt thanks" to President Truman and the United States Government for "all they have done to make Israel a reality."

Then he stepped into a waiting limousine and was sped off to Blair House, official residence for visiting dignitaries. Along the route See CHAIM, Page 2, Column 2

U. N. Council Promised Answer Of Leaders By Noon Wednesday

Explanation of what has happened so far in the Jewish-Arab war. Page 2.

By The Associated Press

The United Nations Security Council last night extended until noon Wednesday (EST) its deadline for a cease-fire in the Arab-Jewish fighting in Palestine.

The Council, meeting at Lake Success, delayed the deadline 48 hours at the request of Syrian and Egyptian representatives. The original U. N. deadline expired at noon yesterday.

The government of Israel, which accepted the U. N. appeal subject to Arab agreement, told the Council the Arabs broke the deadline yesterday when Lebanese gunners fired a barrage across the Palestine border at 12:30 p. m. (EST).

Faris El Khoury of Syria told the Council that Arab leaders will meet in Amman, Trans-Jordan, today, and that their acceptance or rejection of the U. N. appeal to halt the Holy Land fighting will be communicated to Lake Success no later than Wednesday noon.

Meanwhile, Arabs and Jews both claimed victories in local actions as the Palestine fighting continued. Arab spokesmen in Cairo and Lake Success indicated the Arab nations would agree to a truce only if the Israeli army is disbanded and the Palestine partition plan shelved. Obviously the Jews will not accept these conditions.

Many Arab leaders have gathered at Amman to consider the matter. An Arab League source there said the government of Iraq already had decided against the cease-fire order. Arab League members require unanimous agreement for positive action.

U. S. Britain Urge Compliance Both the United States and Britain urged the Arab nations to abide by the U. N. demand. British and American diplomats delivered the appeals for peace in Cairo and other Arab capitals.

Meanwhile, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin conferred in London with United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas for the second time in 48 hours.

While the Foreign Office withheld comment on the course of the discussions, it was assumed the talks were held in an effort to iron out British-American differences over Palestine. Informed American sources hinted the results of the talks will be apparent in the U. N. Security Council.

A British government source implied Britain will consider withdrawing her 40 officers serving with Trans-Jordan's Arab Legion if the Arab nations turn down U. N. peace efforts. A ban on further shipments of arms by Britain to other Arab states also was mentioned as a possibility.

The informant emphasized that Britain regards her obligations to the United Nations as having precedence over her commitments to the Arab states.

Reports from the fighting fronts told this story:

A Hagana communiqué, issued by the Jewish army in Tel Aviv, said: "The whole Jordan Valley has been cleared of enemy forces." The communiqué said Jewish forces recaptured two settlements in the northern area—Sha'ar Hagolan and Massada. It added that the whole Samakh area now is in Jewish hands. 'Plain as an Old Shoe', Brannan Runs Office Smoothly, Misses His Garden been Acting Secretary, but who had accepted a high post with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Terming Brannan "loyal and diligent," Anderson said he was also delighted that he comes from Denver "and is familiar with Western problems."

The new Secretary helped draft the long-range farm program which the Agriculture Department submitted to Congress last November. This program formed the basis for a farm message the President sent to Congress the week before last. Some of its recommendations are similar to provisions in the farm bill which the Senate Agriculture Committee has approved.

One of Brannan's first assignments with the Agriculture Department was to arrange for the purchase of one million acres of drought-stricken land in the mountain States. A few years later, as regional attorney for the department, he added information of the irrigation districts and other cooperative efforts by farmers to solve their land and water problems.

Before he came to Washington in 1944, Brannan was director of the Farm Security Administration (now Farmers Home Administration) for Colorado, Wyoming and Montana.

As assistant secretary, he served as agricultural adviser to the U. S. delegation at the San Francisco organization meeting of the United Nations. He is adviser to the U. S. delegate to the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations. He served as a delegate to the Inter-American conference at Bogota, Colombia, where Communists put on an anti-American demonstration.

Brannan's nomination leaves two posts open in the Department, his own as assistant secretary and Dodd's post of undersecretary. Brannan has cattle ranching interests in Eastern Colorado.

Council Lends Canteen $4000

The Falls Church Town Council last night advanced $4000 to trustees of the Falls Church Teen Canteen to complete the recreation center.

The money will be repaid when a volunteer solicitation among residents and businessmen is completed.

Town Attorney LaRue Van Meter told the council the canteen at Hillwood ave. and Douglas st. already has cost $4923. The additional $4000, besides $1927, will be needed for plumbing installations.

The council also appropriated $310 to the Falls Church Recreation Commission for a parent-teacher association program. The P-TA funds were low because of a smaller Community Chest appropriation.

South Africa Recognizes Jewish State

Capetown, South Africa, May 24 (P).—The Union of South Africa accorded de facto recognition today to Israel.

It was the first nation of the British Commonwealth to do so. The United States, Russia and several smaller nations have recognized Israel.

Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts told Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok in a telegram the recognition does not take account of any particular boundaries.

He said the union government will be prepared to recognize any Arab state in Palestine either as a separate state or as incorporated into neighboring Arab states.

Brannan, a quiet, modest man, makes one boast—when he lived in Denver he had the most beautiful lawn that anyone ever had anywhere in the United States.

Something of his equable temperament will be gauged from the fact that nevertheless, lawn and all, he kept a dog—an English bull. As any gardener will testify, this spells patience, poise and a pleasant disposition.

Leadership Urged in Fight On Prejudices

Dr. Julius Schreiber, director of the National Council of Social Relations, last night called for "progressive leadership" in the Nation's capital to lessen prejudices against minority groups here.

Speaking before a seminar sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard sts. n.w., Schreiber said that many persons with only "mild prejudices" would be happy to lose them if called upon by "progressive leadership."

Acknowledging that professional prejudice is often handed down in taking the lead to persuade a community to eradicate prejudice by fears of job insecurity, Schreiber suggested that these professional persons work with individuals who have more security and prestige in the community.

He said that prejudice "provides outlets for tensions," and helps to "perpetuate a neurotic way of life."

He said that prejudice, housing troubles, or inflation, tend to blame their woes on minority groups, he said.

The Arab high command said its troops had captured Ramat Rehel, a Jewish village half-way between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, where a major battle had raged for 48 hours. The radio of Haganah, the Israeli army, broadcast that all of Ramat Rehel was in Arab hands except for a communal eating place which Jews still held.

Both sides reported the other's casualties were heavy at Ramat Rehel. The Arabs said they had killed more than 300 Jews and the Jews said "tens of bodies" of Arab attackers littered the streets.

After a 48-hour respite, Tel Aviv was bombed from the air yesterday. This time the Arabs used two-engine bombers. It was believed to be the first time the Arabs used planes heavier than fighter-bombers. The Jews said the Arabs dropped a few heavy bombs in the northern part of the city. The damage was not determined immediately.

An Arab army communiqué said that light Arab forces passed Ramat Rehel and advanced to Bethlehem, five miles south of Jerusalem.

An Egyptian communiqué said the Egyptian army captured several Jewish strongholds in Palestine's southern coastal belt Sunday night after a nine-hour battle. It said the bodies of 500 Jews were counted on the battlefield in the Deir Suneid region between Tel Aviv and Gaza.

Both Jews and Arabs reported extensive air activities. Haganah said two Arab planes were shot down at Kinneret on the southwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee. The Egyptians said they shot down a Jewish plane in last night's action in the southern coastal belt.

A dispatch from Jerusalem said Trans-Jordan Arab Legionnaires were attempting to disorganize Jewish defenses by heavy shelling.

Explosive Palestine Situation Of Jews and Arabs Explained

By James Marlow
Associated Press Reporter

Here's an explanation if you are confused about what has happened so far in the Jewish-Arab war in Palestine.

The Arabs have attacked the Jews from three directions: North, south and at Jerusalem. The heavy fighting has been at Jerusalem.

Since this is such a mixed-up war in a mixed-up place, tackle it by steps.

Jews and Arabs have lived side by side in Palestine, which is the size of Vermont, with the Arabs far outnumbering the Jews.

On May 15—when the British gave up after trying for 25 years to keep peace in Palestine—the Jews declared themselves a nation. They set up the Republic of Israel.

Half Of Palestine

They claimed for their new state about one half of Palestine. The Jews, well-organized, and with the backing of most of the world's Jews, were able to set up their state under agreed-upon leaders.

The Arabs in Palestine, a more backward people and on a lower cultural and political level, had neither organization nor leadership.

But they did have the support of the rest of the Arab world, which wanted no Jewish state in Palestine.

So this outside Arab world sent its fighting men banging into Palestine against the Jews. So far they've taken almost none of Jewish Palestine.

The great mass of Arabs, like the Arabs in Palestine, is on such a low cultural plane that whipping them into big armies is not easy, and probably not possible.

A Mixed-Up Story

This will show what a mixed-up story Palestine is:

In Jewish Palestine — Israel — there are about 600,000 Jews, and 395,000 Arabs.

In the city of Jerusalem—in the heart of Arab Palestine—there are 100,000 Jews and 100,000 Arabs.

In all Palestine — Jewish and Arab combined—there are 1,299,000 Arabs and 710,000 Jews.

But—there are 33 million Arabs in the seven Arab states surrounding Palestine: Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Trans-Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and Yemen.

On May 15—the day the British gave up their mandate over Palestine and the Jews set up the Re-

U. S. Ship Not Returning to Haifa for Jews

Haifa, Israel, May 24 (P).—A United States consular source said today the American ship Marine Carp will not return to Haifa to pick up 105 Jewish passengers, including 25 Americans, bound for New York.

The Jews had passage on the United States steamer, but refused to embark Friday when the ship sailed from Haifa for Alexandria, Egypt, because they had no guarantee of safety in the Arab country. They asked that the ship return here for them before sailing for the United States.

The consular source said "the ship's agent informed us the Marine Carp would not come back from Alexandria because of commitments made by the captain to the Egyptian government."

Last week 69 other Jews were removed from the Marine Carp at Beirut by the Lebanese government for internment. They still are being held and the government of Lebanon has rejected a United States protest over their detention.

It was learned that Jewish forces attempted to retaliate here for Lebanon's interning of 69 Jews, including 41 Americans, when the vessel berthed at Beirut last week. This source said the Jews sought to intern a like number of Arab passengers but were prevented from doing so because the British control the port of Haifa.

(The U. S. State Department was reported to be considering a new demand on Lebanon to free the 41 United States citizens.)

In Beirut, U. S. Ambassador Lowell Pinkerton said he planned to ask the Lebanese government to allow the internees to go to the United States or "any country except Palestine.")

Liaison Set-Up

Allies Defy Russians on Berlin Police

Berlin, May 24 (AP).—Liaison officers of the western Allies were installed today in Berlin's three main police headquarters in defiance of Russian opposition.

The headquarters, in the Russian zone of the city, are in tight control of German Communists who are supported by Soviet officials. The Russians held the action of the United States, Britain and France to be illegal and advised Police President Paul Markgraf to ignore an order directing him to make office space available.

A British liaison officer moved into the central police headquarters. When he appeared at Markgraf's office, the police president asked: "Are you here to issue orders to the police?"

"No," replied the British officer, "just to see that four-power regulations are carried out."

Office space was made available for the American liaison officer, V. N. Kovacic of Long Island, N. Y., when he appeared at uniformed police headquarters. The French established their office at the criminal police headquarters building.

The western Allies, United States authorities said, are exercising a right they have since the four-power occupation of Berlin began. They added that only the Russians had exercised this right previously.

The Americans emphasized they feel assignment of the liaison officers is necessary to prevent reprisals and intimidation of police personnel by Communist officials if the police take an anti-Communist line.

House Group Ends Hearings On Aid Needs

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

After five weeks of taking testimony behind closed doors, a House Appropriations Subcommittee, under Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.), yesterday finished its hearings on the European Recovery Program and other foreign aid requests.

The hearings were one of the longest and most searching examinations ever given to a single piece of legislation. They began April 20 and continued virtually every working day until the last witness was excused yesterday morning.

A bill not expected until next Tuesday, June 1, at the earliest. This would be three weeks behind Taber's original estimate that he might have a bill ready for the House by May 10. Possibly, a committee spokesman said yesterday, a day or two of further hearings might be needed before the bill could be reported out.

If the bill emerges June 1 it will leave less than three weeks for both Houses to debate it, and to adjust their differences, before Congress adjourns on June 19. In the meantime ECA has been operating on a billion dollars advanced by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

As usual when a congressional committee holds secret hearings, there were many rumors of what Taber and his group would recommend. The committee probably will not decide on a figure, however, until it has digested the staggering quantity of testimony presented to it.

Exhaustive Analysis Made
Taber kept on old promise in subjecting the ECA request to a country-by-country and dollar-by-dollar analysis. When the House was debating the authorization bill on March 31, he said:

"I intend to go into the need of every nation before recommending funds to the House. I intend to go into the capacity of the United States to provide for this program." And he announced that he would work as hard as he could "to protect the people and the Treasury of the United States."

Although ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman was the first of Taber's witnesses, State Department officials bore the brunt of the questioning during the long weeks of the hearings. The request was based on figures drawn up in State and other executive departments before ECA was in full operation.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, meanwhile, continued its own hearings without waiting for a report and recommendations from Taber.

Helsinki, Finland, May 24 (AP).—Shipping was paralyzed in the most important Finnish ports today by a walkout of Communist dock workers. The strikers were protesting the dismissal of Communist Yrjo Leino from the cabinet.

In the Helsinki harbor, 34 ships lay idle with their cargoes still in their holds. The strikers made an exception of a Russian vessel, which was unloaded promptly. Half of the idle vessels were of foreign registry and the government must pay their owners strike compensation in scarce foreign money.

Ousted by President
Some Communists called for a general strike, but Finnish leaders said they believed this would fail because of the strong opposition of the leading Social Democratic Party. In Turku, however, the strike spread from the docks to all the important factories.

Leino, former Minister of the Interior, was censured by the Parliament May 19 for permitting the extradition of 20 persons to the Soviet Union and for police treatment of arrested Finnish officers in 1945.

He was ousted Saturday by President Juho K. Paasikivi after he failed to present his resignation.

The strike crisis was reported to be a fight for prestige between the Communists and the President. Government sources said an effort would be made to solve the crisis, probably tomorrow.

Leino Promises Fight
Leino said tonight that his removal from office was a desperate attempt by reactionaries to recapture their lost positions. He joined with Kusti Kulo, chairman of the Popular Democratic parliamentary group, in asserting that the Popular Democrats would not capitulate. They said they would continue their fight "with all legal means."

The Communist-dominated Popular Democrats are demanding the Interior Ministry and the Vice Foreign Ministry posts.

2 Hot Fights Due in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., May 24 (AP).—Maryland lawmakers began drifting into the State Capitol tonight, ready for a special session that most observers guessed would last from two to three days.
More than 60 bills were certain to be introduced in the session that begins with a message from Governor Lane Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. (EDT).

From every quarter came the prediction that at least two hot fights were in the making.
Lane called the legislature back primarily to consider a 10 per cent across-the-board pay raise for State employees.

In the limelight over the weekend was speculation that a measure to elect the three members of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission would pop up. A new agency would be created, the talk went, to replace the one currently embroiled in controversy.

Varied reactions greeted the rumors today, but each legislator and State official questioned denied knowing that a "ripper" bill had been prepared. As to its desirability, opinions ranged from a comment by Senator Goldstein (D., Calvert) that he'd "have to vote for it," to flat opposition from Senator Stromberg (D., Howard).

Stromberg said a "ripper" bill would be "dastardly."
In a review of State finances which accompanied his announcement of a special session, the

The United States admitted today that it recently began retaliating against Russian methods of issuing visas by holding up American visas for Russian citizens, but expressed regret that two Soviet delegates to the United Nations had been delayed by the new procedure.

The admission and expression of regret followed a Russian charge that the American Embassy in Moscow had refused visas to commission delegates from the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia until the United Nations took the matter up with the State Department.

They had been refused visas by the American Embassy on May 2 until they agreed to fill out a new American questionnaire.

Italians Get New Cabinet Without Reds

Rome, May 24 (AP).—Premier Alcide De Gasperi's revamped cabinet, faced with the long-haul job of rebuilding Italy's shattered economy, was sworn in today before President Luigi Einaudi.

Six men who were entering or reentering the cabinet and four who have new assignments swore to be faithful to the republic, to observe the constitution loyally, and to exercise their functions "in the supreme interest of the nation."

Unless political divergencies grow so sharp that President Einaudi exercises his constitutional right to dissolve the Parliament, the De Gasperi government will remain in power five years.
The new cabinet will meet for the first time Wednesday. Undersecretaries will be chosen then and the Premier will submit the program he expects to take before Parliament Monday.

Russia May Urge Division Of Trieste Area

Rome, May 24 (AP).—Russia soon may propose the division of the Trieste, free territory between Italy and Yugoslavia, diplomatic quarters reported today. The Italian foreign office said any such proposal would be rejected.

The Trieste question has been quiet since the Soviet refusal to agree to the United States-British proposal to give all of the Free State back to Italy.

These reports said Russia will suggest that the present Anglo-American zone, which includes the city of Trieste but amounts to less than half of the actual territory, be returned to Italy.

Yugoslavia would take full control of the zone it now occupies, which would move that country's frontier to the outskirts of Trieste City.

Priest Assaulted

Trieste, Free Territory, May 24 (AP).—A Catholic priest from Trieste's Anglo-American zone was beaten today by four unidentified men in the Yugoslav zone, Venezia Giulia civil police announced.
The Rev. Antonio Smrkol of San Dorilio Della Valle had gone with two teachers and 60 pupils to a festival in the town of San Servola in the Yugoslav sector. He was attacked after he had said mass, police reported.

He was treated for severe bruises. The teachers and pupils fled across the line.

Priesthood Decimated In Albania

Vatican City, May 24 (AP).—All but one of the Catholic hierarchy in Albania have been jailed or killed, Vatican sources said today.

The exception is the Bishop of Pulati, 71-year-old Msgr. Bernard Shaku, who is in the mountains.
Vatican sources said the country's clergy, both regular and secular, also has been decimated. These sources said:
Of the 70 secular priests in all Albania, at least 12 have been slain and others are in jail.
Of 54 Jesuits, 17 priests and 14 lay brothers of Italian nationality have been expelled.
Italian nuns have been expelled and practically all religious institutes and orders have been suppressed.

All Catholic schools are closed. Catholic action forbidden and Catholic printshops confiscated.

Legislature Backs Wong As Premier

Nanking, May 24 (AP).—Slight 59-year-old Wong Wen-hao, rated China's leading scientist, was confirmed today as Premier. He was President Chiang Kai-shek's surprise choice.

The action carried the generalissimo over the most serious internal challenge to his leadership in two decades. But it is not likely to end the struggle for power building up within the government.

The new Legislature, whose members forced Chiang to abandon efforts to retain Premier Chang Chun, gave Wong reluctant but obedient confirmation. The vote was 489 to 94. The Legislature defeated a motion to require Wong to explain his policies to it.

Without a political machine or power of his own, Wong—who weighs less than 100 pounds—must depend on strong support by Chiang to enforce his program. He is expected to form his cabinet within two days.

Atomic Group Minority Hits Short Terms

Five Democratic lawmakers said yesterday it would be both "unwise and dangerous" to extend for only two years the terms of the Atomic Energy Commissioners.

In a minority report of the Senate-House Atomic Committee, they urged that the recommendations of President Truman be carried out. The President, on April 20, re-nominated Chairman David E. Lillenthal for a five-year term, and the other commissioners for terms ranging from one to four years.

The Democrats said a bill introduced by Chairman Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) and Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) "would seriously impair the efficiency of the atomic energy program." The measure would extend all the terms to June 3, 1950.

The bill was approved by a majority of the committee last week. In a report at that time, the majority said any hasty decisions as to a permanent administrative pattern for the commission are "unwarranted and unwise."

Hickenlooper told a reporter he hopes to get the Senate to act on the bill some time this week. He said he thinks it will be approved.

The Democrats—Senator McMahon (Conn.) and Representatives Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), Durham (N. C.), Hollifield (Calif.) and Melvin Price (Ill.)—said enactment of the bill would:

1. Dissipate the spirit of political nonpartisanship in which the entire atomic energy program was conceived and established.
2. Impair the continuity in management of the project.
3. Create confusion among atomic workers.
4. Suggest to the American people the possibility of a complete turnover in commission membership and in commission policies two years hence.

Official Backed Keep Virden, Rep. Bender Tells House

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) told the House yesterday that the Commerce Department should not let John C. Virden resign.

Virden is the official who handed in his resignation Friday to spare the Government "embarrassment" because his 22-year-old daughter is employed here by Tass, official Russian news agency. A Cleveland, Ohio, manufacturer in private life, Virden has headed the department's Office of Industry Cooperation.

Bender told the House that "over this past weekend scores of highly responsible, thorough men and women" have urged Virden to reconsider his resignation.

"I am adding my voice to this matter," Bender went on. "I urge the Department of Commerce to reject his resignation and to demonstrate our confidence in him by inviting him to remain at his post."

John C. Virden is a man of unquestioned integrity. Let us show the Communist world that we judge each man on his own merits; that we do not hold an established citizen accountable for the failings of others."

Jury Indicts In Raping of Blind Woman

Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54, Takoma Park, Md., garbage collector, and alleged rapist of a 72-year-old widow, almost blind, yesterday was indicted on a charge of rape by the Montgomery County grand jury.

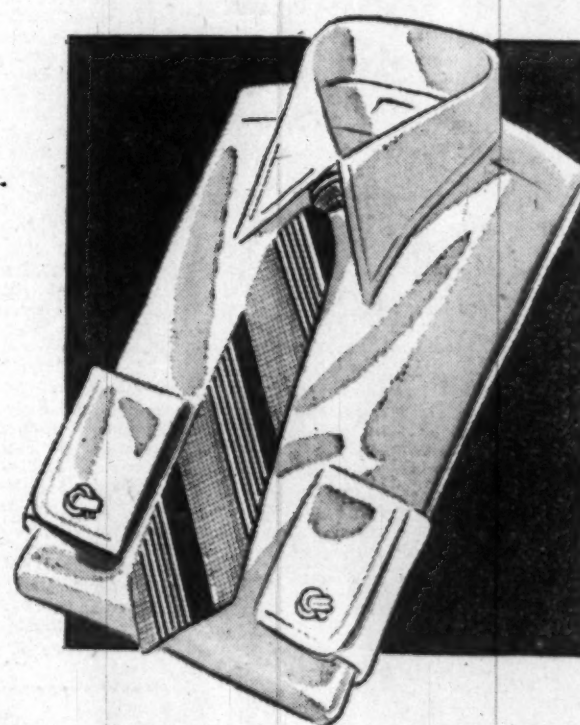

The jurors were called into special session on request of State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson to hear evidence on the attack of May 12.

Ross was arrested a few hours after the victim gave police a detailed description of her assailant, obtained by means of her sensitive fingers.

The woman said the man was bald, and he had a ridge on the back of his neck. She described the contours of his face, and the texture of his clothing, and said she noted a "peculiar odor" about him.

Ross, picked up at home, first denied the crime, but later, after the woman ran her fingers over his face and head, he confessed

New York, May 24 (P)—The Federal Government moved today to settle two labor disputes that threaten coast-to-coast strikes by 55,000 telephone workers.

First, it announced a presidential board of inquiry will begin hearing a wage-hour dispute tomorrow between the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and 25,000 long-distance workers in 42 States and the District of Columbia.

Secondly, it announced a mediator will be assigned by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to a wage dispute between 30,000 heavy equipment telephone workers and the Western Electric Co.

No date was set for the mediator's appointment.

The A. T. & T. long lines employees are affiliated with the CIO
American Union of Telephone Workers (AUTW). The equipment workers are members of the CIO Association of Communication Equipment Workers which claims
30,000 members in 44 States.

Both unions have threatened strikes but the AUTW has said it is suspending strike plans while the board of inquiry holds its investigation.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduce the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of red-blood-cells multiply your force to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 855 Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 855 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 855 Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 855 Tonic now.
As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthier color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 855 Tonic

Detroit, May 24 (AP).—General Motors Corp. offered a wage boost of better than 6 cents an hour today in an effort to avert a strike of its 225,000 CIO United Auto Workers.

A walkout is set tentatively for Friday.

The union confirmed that General Motors, biggest outfit in the auto industry, had made its first wage offer of 1948 to the UAW-CIO.

It came to light a few hours after Chrysler Corp. agreed to try to settle the 13-day-old strike of its 75,000 production workers.

The union did not say whether General Motors offer was acceptable. Neither side would name the figure.

However, it was learned from reliable sources that the GM offer was better than the 6 cents an hour which Chrysler offered its workers before they struck May 12.

A GM wage increase, if acceptable to the UAW-CIO, might set a pattern for one million employees in the auto industry, as well as hundreds of thousands in other industries.

The UAW-CIO asked General Motors for a third round of postwar wage boosts totaling 25 cents.
They sought 30 cents from Chry-plished with a medicine dropper.

ler. The average wage in the industry now is about $1.50 an hour.
GM's bid for peace came as five local unions revolted against the UAW-CIO plan to strike the firm.
About 80 per cent of the membership previously had approved a strike.

The five locals, including the biggest in General Motors, voted against a strike. Labor leaders normally regard strike approval as automatic when they ask for it.

The rank-and-file revolt flared as Gov. Kim Sigler came to Detroit to try to end the Chrysler strike.
He called union leaders and company officials to a hotel suite Sunday night. The session lasted most of the night.

Sigler emerged at dawn for a breakfast conference with the press. He told them the two sides had agreed to reopen negotiations
Wednesday at 1 p. m. (EST).
The meeting would be the first since May 11, the day before the strike.

The Chrysler workers once scaled their 30-cent demand to 17 cents. However, Chrysler's only offer was one for 6 cents, which it later withdrew.

In the General Motors situation, Local 599, with 15,000 members in the Flint, Mich., Buick plant, led the revolt against the strike plan.

Members voted 2968 to 1326
against a strike. The UAW-CIO said four smaller locals did the same.

The Buick local acted Sunday, despite a personal plea from Emil Mazey, acting president of the UAW-CIO.

From the floor came shouts from some of the men who walked the picket line for 113 days in 1945-46 during the last General Motors strike. That walkout won auto labor its first postwar wage increase of 18 to 18½ cents an hour.

"We lost our homes, our furniture, our cars then," one member cried from the floor. "Now they want us to do it again."

Actually, labor officials pointed out, the revolt would have little real effect if a strike was called.
Even if the members of the five locals stayed on the job in defiance of the union.

Menken's Servant Fatally Stabbed

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—The 60-year-old housekeeper of the Mencken brothers—Henry L. and August—was stabbed to death today and her daughter was charged with the slaying.

Police found Mrs. Hester Denby unconscious in the vestibule of her home. She had been stabbed several times in what police were told was an altercation with a woman who cried she was "going to get the boss."

Mrs. Denby's 10-year-old grandson, Robert Burley, was cut on the back shoulder and forehead in the melee.

A few hours later police arrested Mrs. Elsie Burley, 38, at the Mencken home. They said Mrs.
Burley had knocked at the door and called to August Mencken that she was "in trouble."

Hearings Open On Labor Act Operation

By The Associated Press

The Taft-Hartley labor law should be changed to state that it is not an unfair labor practice to fire a "subversive" worker, Representative Landis (R., Ind.) said yesterday.

Landis' classification for such a person—one who tends toward overthrow of the Government—would be "a member of an organization listed as subversive by the Attorney General's office."

Landis appeared before the Senate-House watchdog committee which opened yesterday its first public hearings on operations of the law, now 11 months old.

The Congressman also suggested that the law be broadened to require sworn oaths from management and labor contract negotiators that they are not Communists.
Now only top union officials are required to sign such an oath in order to obtain the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

Much of yesterday's hearing was given over to a proposal to end the Taft-Hartley requirement that a majority of employees vote for a union shop before one may be set up. This is the only one of various proposed changes which is believed to have a chance for congressional approval before adjournment.

Under a union shop, the boss may hire whom he pleases, but the new employee must join the union within a specified time, usually 30 days.

Landis, Senator Ives (R., N. Y.)
and two officials of the NLRB—Chairman Paul M. Herzog and Counsel Robert N. Denham—joined yesterday in asking that the union shop election system be junked.

Strike End Booms Livestock Shipping

Chicago, May 24 (U.P.)—Farmers sent big shipments of livestock to Midwest markets today with partial end of the prolonged meat packing strike. Hog prices soared as much as $3 per hundred pounds. Cattle shipments were the heaviest since March 8, which was eight days before the strike began, but prices were mostly steady.

The meat-on-the-hoof market was active as the first of some 70,000 CIO workers streamed back to their jobs at plants of three of the "big four" packers—Swift, Armour and against loss of earnings due to lasting disability of six months or more. In addition, the Government would offer a strong financial inducement to all States to provide insurance for loss of income during temporary illness or disability.

Increased Federal benefits to match "more fully" State aid for dependent children, the needy, aged and blind. Mr. Truman said Federal grants should be related "more equitably to the financial resources and needs of each State."

The President said the Government should not neglect human needs in meeting the problems of postwar adjustment. People whose sole income is from Social Security payments have just about reached the breaking point, he wrote. The protection afforded others is inadequate, he said, and millions are excluded altogether.

"Now, when employment and earnings are at the highest levels on record, is the most favorable time for our working people to earn protection against serious economic risks which face them and their families as a result of unemployment, disability, old age and death," he concluded.

"Moreover, the increased coverage and higher contribution rates which I have proposed will result in a greater excess of income over expenditures in the social security trust funds than is at present the case."

On May 18, the Department successfully asked Justice Goldsborough to dismiss a civil contempt citation against Lewis and the UMW. Government lawyers said that closed the books on that part of the case.

The defendants were convicted of both civil and criminal contempt. The $1,420,000 fines were levied under the latter phase.

But a Government request for dismissal of the 80-day injunction, on the grounds that the strike it covered was then settled, did not meet Goldsborough's immediate approval. He asked for "a very good reason."

Yesterday's memorandum offered as reasons: 1. "A settlement has been reached, within the contemplation of the act."

2. "There is no longer a strike nor is there the threat of a strike... growing out of the dispute which originally led to the strike."

3. Coal production is back to normal.

4. While there still are differences between the union and the coal mine operators, "the government considers that the end of the strike, the removal of the threat of the strike and the settlement of vital differences" washes things up so far as the April strike is concerned.

What Makes An Egg-Grade AA

Since time and heat are the big enemies of fresh eggs, speed of handling and constant cool temperatures must be paramount. Eggs are produced in clean nests with special attention to keeping the feet of the chickens clean to prevent soiled eggs.

Eggs are gathered many times daily and rushed to candling and grading rooms on their way to market. Constant chilling along the entire route is employed to maintain initial egg quality until eggs reach the consumer.

In Taxi Slayings 2 Garners Plan Pleas Of Insanity

George Garner, 25, and his brother, Lawrence Garner, 23, indicted for the murder and robbery of two taxicab drivers, will base their defense on insanity pleas.

The two went on trial in District Court yesterday for the murder of Howard Jones, 27, of 417 Irving st. nw., who was shot twice in the head and robbed of about $4 and a wrist watch.

They are also under indictment for the murder of James Hardy, 32, of 647 G st. ne., who was shot in the stomach and robbed of about $4.

Hardy was found beaten and shot the night of February 27 near 1st and H sts. se., and died the next day at Casualty Hospital. Jones was found in the same vicinity eight hours after Hardy was discovered.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur McLaughlin, prosecutor, told a jury of eight men and four women that the Government will prove the Garners brothers were in the southeast area, where the cab drivers were found, the night of February 27, that they were seen that night driving in Jones' cab, and that his watch and the clip of the gun used in the shooting were found in their possession.

Louis Jongbloet, attorney for Lawrence Garner, declared the Government would be unable to prove such facts, but that if it should prove them, the defense would show that the Garners were "not sane or responsible people."

Girl, 9, Must Remain in Father's Care

Nine-year-old Alice Ray Steele must remain in the custody of her father against her wishes as result of a decision yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

Alice has been the subject of a five-year custody battle between her father, Charles Ray Steele of Chevy Chase, Md., and her mother, Mrs. Mabel Steele of 2070 Belmont rd. nw.

In March, 1944, a District Court judge found that her mother was unfit to have her custody. Three months later, she was given temporarily to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Thompson of 1744 Q st. nw., because of the illness of her father.

In the early part of 1947, she was returned to her father, but several months later, her mother regained control of Alice by obtaining a warrant against Steele's second wife, Frances, on the charge she was mistreating Alice. The second Mrs. Steele was cleared of the charge in the Prince Georges County Police Court on the grounds the whole thing was just a "tempest in a teapot."

Subsequently, the first Mrs. Steele, who had Alice at that time, asked District Court again for her custody. Although the child testified that she telephoned her father, who told her he would beat her as soon as she returned to him, and that she was afraid of him, the court ordered her return to him.

The Court of Appeals stated that since the mother had been found an unsuitable person again and again by different judges throughout the long quarrel and since this fact has never been disproved, custody must remain with the father.

Jury Hears Ex-Operator

was closeted with the grand jury for nearly two hours. She was accompanied to the grand jury room by her attorney, Henry L. Johnson.

Participating in the questioning of yesterday's witnesses before the grand jury were United States Attorney George Morris Fay, and his two assistants, John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray.

Murray, in 1946, prosecuted Warde, Joseph Walling and Byron M. Jones, doorman at the Trojan Club. Jones was acquitted, while the other two were sentenced in a second trial, the first resulting in a hung jury.

Walling, described as president of the club, declared he never had seen any gambling on the club's premises.

A policeman who gathered evidence in the case, said he saw dice and roulette tables in operation there, with chips selling for $5, $50 and $100. But raiders failed to find the gambling device, and contended that the place had been "tipped off" in advance of the raid.

Man Is Charged With Accepting Bet

Charged with accepting a horse-race bet, Peter Thomas Pate, 47, of 1711 23rd pl. se., yesterday was arrested by members of the vice squad in the 1700 block of G st. nw.

Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, said his men kept a watch on Pate for three days and saw him accept a bet. When arrested, said Blick, Pate had in his possession a pad of horse race bets.

Pate posted $50 collateral for an appearance today in Municipal Court.

Realtors Deny Charge

250 members of the Washington board.

He said the national association and its local affiliate violated Section 3 of the Sherman Antitrust Act and outlined the alleged conspiracy thusly:

Each member of the national association, Kramer said, agrees when he becomes a member to abide by its code of ethics. One of the articles in the code of ethics, he continued, stipulates that commission rates set by a local board must be observed by members.

Kramer told the jury that prior to 1943 the realtors charged one commission for a so-called inner zone and a slightly higher commission for the outer zone.

In the inner zone, he said, the commission rate was 5 per cent on the first $5000 of the sales price and 3 per cent on the remainder. In the outer zone a straight 5 per cent commission was charged.

The Government attorney charged that in 1943 the Washington board set up a new schedule of rates for its members which exacted a 5 per cent commission on the first $50,000 and then 3 per cent. This, he said, applied to both zones.

Other Opening Statements

Opening statements were also delivered by Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the national association, and William E. Leahy, counsel for the Washington board.

Although Kramer had fixed the membership of the national group at between 28,000 and 30,000, Whiteford said the membership was approximately 40,000. He added that there are about 250,000 real estate men throughout the country.

Whiteford said the practice of printing and distributing rate schedules among brokers here had been standard procedure for years "yet the Government did not complain until last August."

He said he would prove that the national association has nothing to do with fixing policy of local boards, that the code of ethics was passed in 1924 primarily to eliminate fraudulent practices in the business, and that the rate schedule is intended to be only "advisory" in character.

Speaking for the Washington board, Leahy said the rate changes were recommended in 1943 because of complaints that the two zone system was outdated and a relic of horse-and-buggy days.

Leahy said the problem was studied for two years before the rate schedule was revised. He said the Washington board "paid no heed" to what the national association was doing and, in fact, would have resented any interference.

Like Whiteford, Leahy denied the rates were obligatory.

Before the trial recessed, one witness, Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington board, was called to the stand. He was largely called upon to identify a series of documents introduced as evidence by the Government. Rush will return to the stand when the trial resumes at 10 a. m. today.

Foreman of the jury hearing the case is Edward T. Bowman, 31, bus driver, of 1900 B st. ne.

Other jurors are Harry Cohen, 64, builder, of 1314 Decatur st. nw.; Mary E. & Esther, 31, secretary, of 4952 1st st. nw.; Edwin C. Clarke, 52, retired policeman, of 4913 7th st. nw.; Mary O'Connor Iversen, 44, housewife, of 2713 Belmont st. n.e.; Charles E. Johnson, 28, telephone operator, of 1228 18th st. n.e.; Ferretter st. nw.; Sarah C. Moore, 61, housemaid, of 613 Q st. nw.; Delano L. Robey, 36, machinist, of 4115 18th st. se.; Charles W. Thomas, 38, binding operator, of 151 17 st. n.w.; Claude M. Wood, 46, machinist, of 3223 15th st. n.w.; and Evelyn D. Zittrouer, 32, clerk, of 5623 8th st. n.w.

Your Scalp...a DYNAMIC HAIR GROWER!

AVOID BALDNESS...
Let Hair Experts "Normalize" Your Scalp to help Produce THICKER HAIR

YOU CAN'T STOP THRIVING HAIR GROWTH IN A NORMAL SCALP!
Nature's innate urge to grow luxuriant hair is so intense that it takes a strong, continuous retardant, or infection to stop the functions of hair reproduction. When excessive hair loss indicates a laxity or sluggishness in hair-growing activity, Hair Experts analyze and rejuvenate the complete cycle of hair growth so that lost hair will be replaced naturally by strong, virile, obvious hair growth.

IS YOUR SCALP REPLACING HAIR AS FAST AS IT IS LOST?
The average normal scalp loses about 26,500 hairs per year. If your scalp is functioning normally, thick, healthy hairs will replace those lost in the normal replacement process. But if just one factor is out of balance, the replacement hairs will come in shorter, and weaker, and be successively replaced by still weaker hairs, until fuzz and scanty bald spots begin to show. If this condition exists over a period of time, your hair follicles will collapse and from disease and deadly follicle shrinkage will set in. After that it is too late. It is pathetic but true, that most bald people could have saved their hair and their looks had they acted in time... before follicle shrinkage was too far advanced.

HERE ARE THE DANGER SIGNALS:
If you have excessive hair in your combings, if you have short weak hairs at your frontal hairline, if there is excessive dryness, or oiliness, if your scalp is itchy, then there is some condition attacking your normal hair growth. Frankly, in most cases it is a seborrheic infection nurtured by heavy imbedded dandruff, which chokes off the follicular tubes. The new replacement hairs are successively weakened until they are no longer able to force their way through to the scalp surface.

WHAT ARE SCIENCE'S INSTRUMENTS TO CONQUER NATURE'S WEAKNESS?
Hair Experts use the most modern trichological methods in the country to combat and replace hair loss. Ultra-violet lamp therapy, exclusive formulas created in our own laboratories, intensive professional stimulation, and massage are all scientifically combined to normalize and return the scalp to healthy vigorous growth. Treatments are pleasant, and relaxing. No odoriferous chemicals, ointments, or greasy salves are used. Treatments are timed to suit your social, and physical requirements.

Navy Shows Studies In Atomic Radiation

Experiments being conducted at the Naval Medical Research Institute to study effects on animals of total body radiation—such as might result from atom bomb explosion—were outlined yesterday before some 150 pathologists. Films of the project and its background were shown and described by Comdr. John L. Tullis, USN, at the institute in the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The audience included pathologists of five States and the District who are attending a joint two-day session here under auspices of the College of American Pathologists.

Dr. Tullis later told a reporter no drugs have yet been found to immunize or cure the subjects (swine, goats and rats) of radiation effects.

However, border-line victims, hovering between life and death, sometimes are helped, he said, by repeated transfusions.

Hemorrhage, destruction of cell or tissue and secondary infection are the three general classes of lesions caused by radiation, Dr. Tullis pointed out. A million-volt X-ray, borrowed from the Naval Gun Factory, is being used, he reported, to produce lesions similar to those caused by atom bomb explosion.

Distance remains the only sure method of immunization. That or lead, steel, concrete or water, which tend to filter out gamma rays, he said.

The conference heard other technical reports at the Naval Hospital yesterday morning, then in the afternoon visited the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda. Studies and exhibits in the cancer field were discussed.

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, paid tribute to the important role played by the registered medical technologist in treatment and diagnosis of diseases at the group's dinner last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. Douglass reported there are more than 11,000 technologists registered and that 285 schools, including American University, provide training for their profession. He said the pay of registered technologists ranges from $175 to $300 a month.

New Charges Rift Widens In Crippled Child Tiff

A split in the governing board of the District Society for Crippled Children widened yesterday over participation of the society's national representatives in reorganization of the local group.

Miguel J. Uline, former president of the local society, in a letter to Lawrence Linck, executive secretary of the National Society of Crippled Children and Adults, charged the national group with "disturbing the local organization so that you can take over."

Mrs. Beulah Drake, current president of the local group, said she has refused an offer of the national group to participate in reorganization until she submits to the board her own "comprehensive program."

The plan will be offered at the June 8 meeting, she said.

Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, head of the Health Department Bureau of Mental Welfare, said that a resolution adopted by the board on May 11 called for the national group to step in immediately.

The national group delivered an ultimatum then that gave the local body 60 days to reorganize or lose its affiliation.

Loss of affiliation would end local participation in the Easter seal fund-raising campaign. The drive this year brought $50,000 to the local group, which aids preschool-age children suffering from cerebral palsy.

The demand for reorganization came after five members of the local staff resigned in a dispute with Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, executive secretary.

Uline charged Linck with mismanagement of the national group and said that Linck's traveling expenses to Washington alone are out of all reason.

"You live in big suites at the Statler Hotel," the letter said. "Why can't you live in ordinary rooms in ordinary hotels?"

Mrs. Durant's Appeal Sends Hesse Record to High Court

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP)—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals today forwarded the record in the Hesse crown jewel case to the United States Supreme Court, in connection with a petition for final review by Kathleen Nash Durant, former WAC captain.

Freed from the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va., last September, on a writ of habeas corpus, Mrs. Durant was ordered back to prison to finish a five-year term when the circuit court here last month reversed Federal Judge Ben Moore.

Attorneys for the Government and Mrs. Durant told the Circuit Court here in its April term that the record in the Hesse case never ruled on whether an officer on inactive duty is subject to recall for the purpose of court martial. The trial court and the appeals court split on this point, the controlling issue in the case.

Convicted with her husband Jack Durant, former Army Colonel, of the theft of the Hesse jewels in Germany, Mrs. Durant had been free on $5000 bond after Judge Moore granted her a writ of habeas corpus.

TARIFF—From Page 1 Tariff Measure Sent to House

H.R. 6556 (GOP bill) to be enacted.

Mr. Marshall hit particularly at provisions giving the Tariff Commission authority to tell the President how high and how low he should go in negotiating tariff changes in any specific item. Under the bill, if the President failed to follow these limits, Congress would have authority to disapprove the entire agreement.

The Secretary of State called it "a cumbersome procedure which would involve interminable delays on serious questions of responsibility." He said it substitutes a single agency, the Tariff Commission, for the present seven-agency committee making tariff recommendations to the President.

"Most serious of all," he said, "it in effect makes pure protection the sole criterion for tariff action."

During yesterday's Rules Committee skirmish, Doughton said Republicans always have been "unbelievers" in the reciprocal trade program and again hit the recent "closed door" hearings. He complained the bill was drawn by Republican members following the closed hearings, instead of being laid down in advance as a basis for hearings.

Cooper charged bluntly that Republicans are "killing" the program. Criticizing the "gas" rule procedure, he said the original act, and its four previous extensions, have always been open to amendment on the floor.

Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), chairman of the Ways and Means Subcommittee which drafted the measure, contended the changes would improve the program and "restore confidence" in it. He said the Tariff Commission has advised him it can exercise its new functions under the act "efficiently and properly."

Welfare Taxi Clients Face Bureau Check

The District Welfare Department is considering stationing an employee outside its building to check arriving and departing relief clients, Welfare Director John W. Trumburg said yesterday.

Although "it doesn't seem reasonable that these people are using cabs to pick up their checks," Trumburg said he intends to guard against such a possibility. He pointed out that less than 100 checks a month are issued across the counter, while the "vast majority" are mailed.

The statement came as the result of charges made on Capitol Hill Friday that of 70 relief recipients watched, 4 of every 10 arrived by taxicab.

Trumburg also disclosed that the Board of Public Welfare will consider nomination of a new superintendent of the Industrial Home School at a meeting Friday. The welfare director, who previously held the school position, has nominated Gerald M. Shea, his former assistant for the $6100 a year position.

$5000 Bond Set in Rape Attempt Case

A 17-year-old Arlington youth was held in $5000 bond in Arlington County Jail yesterday, charged with the rape of a county girl, aged 15, last Saturday night.

The girl, employed in a drug store in South Arlington, was en route to a home at 14th and South Quincy sts., where her sister was baby-sitting when the alleged attack occurred, she told police.

The boy, according to the girl, dragged her behind a hedge in a garden on South 14th st. and attempted to rape her.

A physician who examined the girl said she showed some evidence of having been raped.

Compromise Pension Bill Pact Reached

The District Commissioners and leaders of the local police and firemen's organizations yesterday agreed on a compromise pension bill for widows and orphans. A House District subcommittee immediately okayed the legislation.

The bill provides $125 a month for widows of firemen or policemen killed in line of action; $100 for other widows, and up to $25 a month for orphans. Widows now get $60 and orphans $10.

The police and firemen's organizations had originally sought $125 for all widows, but accepted the Commissioners' plan in order to assure congressional action this session. In turn, the Commissioners raised the period of eligibility for orphans from 16 years of age to 18.

A second bill was approved by the subcommittee, headed by J. Glenn Beall (R., Wash.). This one, asked by the Commissioners, would give the local government the power to demand the destruction of weeds on private property. The power would be backed up with a fine, and the right to go into private property, destroy the weeds, and then collect costs from the owner or occupant of the property.

Community Life Is Planners' Topic

Better organized community life is one of the surest foundations of a successful democracy. This point was underscored yesterday throughout the open day's activities of the first National Conference on Community Improvement at the Statler Hotel.

Nearly 500 leaders in business, Government, civic welfare, education and community planning have been attracted thus far to the 3-day meeting. It is sponsored by the National Council for Community Improvement, organized last August.

Key speakers yesterday emphasized there can be serious consequences in ignoring, in this modern world, the individual's role on a community level.

"Democracy in any accurate sense of the term will vanish before we know it is gone," declared Princeton University President Harold W. Dodds, "unless both local government and community civic activities of a nongovernmental character are continued in full vigor and effectiveness." "There is a tendency, Dr. Dodds told a luncheon gathering, "to idealize the state as something almost if not entirely supernatural."

To control what he called "the Government's monopoly of power," Dr. Dodds urged that it be "divided," that local governments be made more effective, with greater citizen participation.

"Unless we can restore this sense of being a member of a community, at home among friends and neighbors, we cannot expect a united America," he said.

Miss Margaret Hickey, public affairs editor of the Ladies Home Journal, urged the conference to seek greater coordination between different types of community-building groups. She deplored the tendency to organize groups of particular people—with a common denominator of either sex, race, age or financial standing.

Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., said motion pictures help to "knit the community more closely together" by providing entertainment and relaxation within everyone's reach.

"The great achievement of the motion picture in the community is that it has made history entertaining. It has given the American citizen more and more information from which he can make up his own mind," the film magnate declared.

Limit Placed On Alexandria Smoke Stacks

The Alexandria City Council sided with Braddock Light & Power Co. yesterday in the power company's squabble with the Civil Aeronautics Administration over the height of power plant smokestacks near National Airport.

After a two-hour hearing, the council voted, 5-to-0, that stacks of the 50-million-dollar Braddock power plant now under construction near Airport's south end must be a minimum of 195 feet above sea level to satisfy smoke control regulations.

Negro Law School Hit

Norman, Okla., May 24 (AP)—A University of Oklahoma law school professor said today establishment of a separate law school for Negroes in Oklahoma was "an attempt to avoid a clear-cut mandate of the United States Supreme Court. It is cheap, political chicanery."

"I think it is time the Attorney General of Oklahoma should attempt to uphold the Constitution of the United States which he has been avoiding for the last six months."

An attempt by Mac Q. Williamson, Oklahoma attorney general, to question Foster concerning previous Supreme Court decisions on segregation was overruled by District Judge T. Austin Hinshaw.

The professor was Henry H. Foster. He testified at a district court hearing in which Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, Negro, is attempting to gain admittance to the University of Oklahoma school of law. Oklahoma's segregation laws prohibit mingling of white persons and Negro in educational institutions.

The Negro woman was denied admittance in 1946. She carried her case to the Supreme Court of the United States. Last January the high court ordered Oklahoma to admit her or provide immediate equal facilities. The State set up in Oklahoma City a law school as a branch of its Negro college—Langston University. But Mrs. Fisher and other Negroes declined to enroll, claiming it was not equal.

Foster testified:

"In my opinion, the two schools are not comparable, let alone substantially equal. It (the Langston

CTC Proposes Silver Spring Express Buses

Capital Transit Co. yesterday asked permission to institute extra-fare rush-hour express bus service between Silver Spring and downtown Washington.

In a request made to the District Public Utilities Commission and the Maryland Public Service Commission, the firm proposed to begin service June 7, running the line via Georgia and Kansas aves. and 13th st. n.w. with a 20-cent fare.

The buses would operate between 7:30 and 8:30 a. m. and 4:45 and 5:45 p. m. from the Maryland terminal at Colesville rd. and Fenton st. to 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. n.w.

The company said the proposal was intended to encourage suburban motorists to leave their cars at home and take the bus instead, thereby relieving District traffic congestion.

The extra fare was required because the additional service would increase expenses, CTC explained.

The Lord Commanded

It is told in the Book of the Kings that "in the second year of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel reigned Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah. . . . And it came to pass, as soon as the kingdom was confirmed in his hand, that he slew his servants which had slain the king his father. But the children of the murderers he slew not: according unto that which is written in the book of the law of Moses, wherein the Lord commanded, saying, The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin." And for some several thousands years, every civilized nation has obeyed this commandment.

Stranded Officers

To the numerous Army reserve officers now in hospitals, the General Accounting Office ruling depriving them of pay must seem a maddening example of frustrating legalisms in which military service is so often encased. Comptroller General Lindsay Warren has decided that the Army acted without authority in ordering these officers back to active duty and hospitalizing them pending a determination of their disability retirement claims. Hence they are cut off without pay, and the salary and allowances they have already received are regarded as illegal payments. Technically the bedeviled Army finance officers who made such payments could be held personally accountable.

This ridiculous development cannot be laid at the door of the General Accounting Office. GAO has a responsibility under the law to check the manner in which appropriations are spent. There has been no comparable difficulty in the Navy, where recall orders have been more general in tone, and there is some reason to believe that the Army's penchant for dotting the last i is at least partially responsible. Regardless of the cause, the condition is one we are sure Congress never intended. The officers concerned are not moochers, but persons who suffered some disability as the result of military service and have come back at the Army's convenience after discharge. It is rank injustice to deprive them and their families of support in such circumstances. We hope Congress will find time to rescue them from their plight.

Toying With The Draft

Those legislators who are seeking to burden the selective service law with a racial segregation requirement apparently have given little thought to the national defense. The effect of this vexatious delay is of course to arm those groups which are intent on having no draft at all. And the picture of Senators Russell and Maybank preparing to "amend and debate" the draft bill on the Senate floor until it is saddled with a segregation provision, while Representative Allen is sitting on the House version, certainly is one to cause great satisfaction among Kremlin expansionists. Surely it is obvious that the stalling on the draft is inconsistent with the heading action of Congress in voting a 70-group Air Force. How can a 70-group Air Force carry the intended military and diplomatic weight without the men both to fly the planes and to supply the bases?

Previous conscription laws have properly contained no reference to segregation. The inclusion of such a clause now would be viewed as a retrogressive step, both morally indefensible and wasteful of the manpower it has been found necessary to muster. And what would be the reason for such a restriction? Experience in the armed forces with mixed units has been almost uniformly good; there has been no dire consequence in the form of increased miscegenation or racial antagonism. Indeed, most of the services' racial trouble has been in connection with separate white and Negro units. We believe, as we have stated previously, that the simplest and most effective way to meet the racial problem in the armed forces would be to face it squarely—that is through progressive dispersal and integration of Negroes in a quietly conducted, gradual program. Even if the separate unit policy were to be continued, however, there would be no justification for pandering to prejudice by formalizing such a provision in the law.

How completely Senator Russell misunderstands the issue is illustrated by his explanation: "If there's any civil right, it's the right of choosing one's associates."

No law that could be passed could force men to select their friends on any basis other than personal preference. What Senator Russell's amendment would do, however, is something different. It would legalize a sort of second-class status that would reflect upon the quality of all military service—this at a time when Congress is calling upon all young Americans to accept their share in the common defense.

First Hurdle Cleared

Yesterday's debate on acceptance of a rule for consideration of the District home-rule bill clearly indicated the lines along which the fight against this measure will be made. The men who have spent a year whipping this admirable piece of legislation into shape emphasized the great care with which the proposed new governmental system for the District has been worked out. The opposition made an outright appeal to confusion, ignorance and prejudice. Seldom has the line between progressive democracy and reactionary distrust of the people been more clearly drawn.

The pace of opposition was set by Congressman John L. McMillan of South Carolina. First, he attributed the sponsorship of the home-rule bill to "a certain crowd" in Washington that would like to take over the Federal Government. "They tried it in 1871," he said, and Congress had to bail out the local government. Washington is getting along better than any city in the United States, he contended, citing as evidence the new courthouse which Congress has approved for the city. The absurdity and irrelevance of these arguments will be readily apparent to any one who has the slightest acquaintance with the District and its governmental problem. They are calculated to appeal to the emotions rather than the intellect and to gloss over the appalling fact that Washington is the one city in America that is denied control over its local affairs.

Instead of taking over Federal functions, the proposed home-rule system would be confined strictly to District affairs and allow Congress more time to give to national legislation. Instead of repeating the blunder of 1871, when a District governor appointed by the President ran the city into trouble, this bill would create a modernized local government under the control of an elected council. In many respects it is the reverse of the 1871 experiment. And, of course, the local regime would have no control over the building of Federal courthouses or other national projects.

Equally flimsy are objections to the size of the bill. It is no longer or more complicated than dozens of other measures upon which the House must pass judgment. As against these trifling and misinformed objections to the bill is the fact that it would enfranchise once more over 850,000 loyal American citizens. We ask members of the House who are inclined to assume an apathetic attitude toward the bill what they would do if their home community had been denied any form of suffrage for 74 years. Would they consider it an urgent and important matter if their home town were trying to supply modern governmental services with municipal machinery created just after the Civil War and since improved by only piecemeal changes? This is no routine matter. So far as the city of Washington is concerned, the essence of democracy is at stake. The protest against it is nothing more than an anachronistic demand for government without any consent from the governed.

The House is to be highly commended for accepting the rule limiting debate on the measure and assuring that it will be brought to a vote. Now the great struggle will be to prevent it from being emasculated by amendment. We think the House vote for the rule is a majority demand for restoration of some form of local government here. That being the case, we implore members of the House to let us have a sound and constructive system under which home rule will have a fair chance to succeed. There would be no point in pretending to offer bread and then handing us a stone. Let the bill stand in its present form so that the basic principle of home rule may have the maximum chance for success in the admittedly complicated situation that must be met in the Nation's Capital.

Margarine Prices

If Congress should get around to passing the bill repealing margarine taxes, the housewife who is looking forward to lower prices for butter substitutes might as well be prepared for a bitter disappointment. To be sure, there has never been reason to expect that repeal of the taxes would have much, if any immediate, effect on prices, since the tax on uncolored margarine is only a quarter of a cent per pound, and it is the uncolored margarine that is usually bought. The chief hope was for an expansion of sales of colored margarine at lower prices following abolition of the 10-cent tax on the colored product.

But even that hope will fade if producers are compelled to pay exorbitant prices for the oils used in manufacturing margarine. Indeed, regardless of the fate of the tax repeal bill, it seems likely that margarine prices are due for a sharp rise. An official representing the largest producer of margarine in the country says that his company is now selling margarine for less than the cost of the crude oil from which it is made. If the shortage of cottonseed oil continues, his company may be compelled to raise prices of margarine 10 or 15 per cent. Another representative of the industry declares that margarine prices will be boosted to a 60-cent level, if cottonseed oil prices remain at present levels.

The prices of all the principal oils going into the production of margarine were already extremely high and had been rising steadily for some time before the present price squeeze developed. The difficulties that confront the industry in keeping down prices are, therefore, not a recent development, although they have been greatly accentuated by the current sharp increases in oil prices. Representative Andersen, a foe of the tax repeal bill, suggests that margarine prices have been kept down so far in order not to prejudice the case for tax repeal. Even if his assumption is well founded, that is no argument against repeal of the margarine taxes. For, as we have said many times, the strongest single argument in favor of repeal is the discriminatory nature of the taxes.

Tax repeal, by removing obstacles to competition, should in the long run tend to lower margarine prices, other things remaining unchanged. Obviously increases in production costs resulting from a rise in prices of materials required for the manufacture of margarine introduce new elements into the price picture that have to be taken into account by the seller.

Up To The House

The House of Representatives cannot continue to ignore the Federal aid-to-education bill, passed overwhelmingly by the Senate, without grave injury to its own prestige and to the national interest. It can be safely said that no other pending legislation has been so carefully reviewed or so widely endorsed by appropriately interested national organizations and by distinguished citizens from every walk of life. This measure, in more or less its present form, has been before Congress for no less than five years. Urgent as the need for it was in 1943, the increase in living costs and the deterioration in the country's public education system has now made its adoption altogether imperative. Without Federal aid, the public schools of many States face imminent breakdown.

The measure awaiting action by the House had bi-partisan sponsorship led by Senator Taft in the Senate. It provides for a simple grant-in-aid program on an equalization basis to enable States lacking adequate financial resources of their own to improve their school facilities and especially to increase the scandalously low rates of pay which have been responsible for a tragic exodus from the teaching profession. Under its terms, the Federal Government would make available to the States 300 million dollars a year so that children everywhere in America may have a fair chance in the competition of American life.

It is argued by opponents of this measure that the Federal Government cannot now afford to spend 300 million dollars. The sum is a substantial one. It amounts, for example, to a little less than the sum which Congress has decided the country can afford to spend each week for military defense. It amounts to slightly more than the cost of building two of the proposed supercarrier aircraft. Perhaps the economy-minded members of the House ought to think of education as an adjunct to national security. The prevalence of illiteracy and ignorance among the young men of America proved very costly indeed from the point of view of Selective Service during the war. Can the country afford, viewing the matter strictly from the standpoint of security, to neglect the education of its youngsters?

Viewing the matter from the more general standpoint of the Nation's welfare in peace, can any society consecrated to the concept of self-government afford to let its youth grow to maturity incapable of intelligent participation in the democratic process? Federal aid to education is in itself an economy measure—a measure, this is to say, designed to economize and conserve the richest resources of the country. Enactment of this vital measure is now a direct responsibility of the Republican leadership in the House. That leadership will stand convicted of the most profligate sort of parsimony if it fails to act before the Eightieth Congress adjourns, for the protection of American children.

The Right Age

We now learn from the psychiatrists that the age between 25 and 35 years is a most difficult one. It is full of strains and stresses, physical and mental, because it is then that we find out that the grand dreams and ambitions of youth have to be adjusted to reality. That, according to Dr. Edward G. Billings of Denver, who recently addressed the American Psychiatric Association on this subject, results in disillusionment, even in imaginary ills.

This news is shocking and depressing. We had accepted the fact that childhood was often a time of suffering. Think of the number of persons who on the slightest provocation will confess to having been misunderstood and unhappy in their early years. We were also aware of the miseries of adolescence. And we had repeatedly heard how the 40's were a time when people began to be pushed around by their children and their bosses—when they got fat and frequently lost their youth, beauty and spouses. The 30's and 60's have been represented as times of operations, fallen arches, thrombosis and scores of other ills. As for the 70's and 80's, well, in those brackets people are definitely put in the fifth-wheel category.

But we had always cherished the thought that the time between 25 and 35 was a sort of golden age compared to the rest of life. Now that decade is not even the right age. In fact, no age seems to be the right age—least of all the one chalked up on one's last birthday. Yet who of us would be willing, like Faust, to risk a different one from what we have?

Letters To The Editor

"Trieste's Moore"
In its May 20 editorial, "Trieste's Moore," The Washington Post states that "the task of dealing with newspaper reporters calls for just as much openness and tact and firmness as the job of dealing with the Yugoslavs."

Reporters who will have contact with Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore may take comfort in the knowledge that he is a human being as well as an able soldier. As a former enlisted man in the 104th "Timberwolf" Infantry Division, I knew General Moore as our assistant division commander under Maj. Gen. "Terrible Terry" Allen. Often during quiet days in Europe, General Moore would join us enlisted men in a game of football. He neither asked nor gave quarter and could be found on an improvised badminton court, battling the shuttlecock with some sergeant. He had a manner which made his men feel at ease in his presence. I do not know of a man who disliked him or who did not respect him as a man and a soldier.

General Moore left the Timberwolf division in February, 1945, when he was given command of the division on our right flank during the crossing of the Roer River near Duren.

Rail Employee View

Mr. J. A. Livingston's column of May 13 was the proverbial "last straw" to me after all the screaming that has been going on about the railroad workers. My job is that of yard engineer, and from that vantage point I should like to comment.

"A mere 135,000 would be responsible for throwing out of work 1,200,000." The change in rules proposed by the railroads and approved by the fact-finding board would throw a large number of the 135,000 out of work permanently, while the total number would be out only for the duration of the strike.

"He's well paid. He might get $5000 a year. He certainly does better than $3000." The yard engineer's salary published by the railroad company in the papers was approximately $4000 a year. By taking slightly less time off than is permitted Government employees, I earned in 1947 the amount of $2800. I work on a daily basis at a salary of $10.80 per day, and that amount of pay is forfeited by me for any day I do not work out of the seven days a week.

I receive no time-and-a-half or overtime pay whatever for Sundays, holidays, or nightwork. On the other hand, the group which received the 15 1/2 cent increase—what we designate the nonoperating group—was allowed also time and a half for Sundays and holidays, and granted more than one week vacation after five years of service. I have 23 years in yard service, and I get only one week's vacation. Included in the nonoperating group are car cleaners, which work requires no skill, and they receive approximately $12 for Sunday work (8-hour-day), whereas I receive $10.80 as an engineer, the same pay for week days. . . . I receive no sick leave from the railroad company. The only sick benefits we get is $2.50 a day beginning after being off six days, for which we pay $4.75 a month. We have been negotiating for this increase for approximately one year, and have complied with the Railway Labor Act governing rail employees. Also, we complied with the return-to-work injunction. At no time has there been any disorder or violence. Why criticize us so harshly? We are only asking for the things that most people already have.

Making Democracy Live

Drew Pearson did the cause of democracy a great service in sponsoring a contest on "How to Make Democracy Live." All his contestants must have done a great deal of reading and intensive thinking in writing less than 250 words in the contest. Announcement of its results will spur on others—out of this must come democratic action. I trust this contest will be repeated year after year.

Campaign Sense

I may be mistaken, but I suspect that in the forthcoming campaign the presidential candidates, whoever they may turn out to be, are going to have to talk sense to the American people. The time has passed, I think, when we can be fascinated with generalizations, guesswork and wishful thinking. I foresee a demand for unquestionable facts and honest figures. To put it briefly, the run-of-the-mill American is growing up.

Fourth of July oratory is entertaining, but it no longer satisfies. Not many of us were born in a circus; nevertheless, we wish to be shown. Few of us are blessed with Brobdingnagian brains, but most of us learned, long ago, that two and two make four—and more and more of us are recalling that early lesson.

"Marginal Sea"

With reference to your May 5 editorial, "Marginal Sea," and to the May 12 letter of approbation from your correspondent, "American," would it be in order to inquire how Federal Government came into possession of these tidelands, which the House of Representatives, responding to "The specious arguments of the oil lobby," has declared to belong to the individual abutting States?

One hundred years ago, when the Republic of Texas sought admission to the Union, its Ambassador appeared before Congress as the representative of a sovereign nation, the status of which was universally recognized by her sister nations, including ourselves. Among other perquisites of sovereignty, the Republic of Texas had definitely established its domain over the marine waters which bathed its shores, extending everywhere a distance of "three marine leagues" (10.5 miles) out to sea.

When the Congress of the United States recognized the Republic of Texas, and later when it approved the admission of Texas to the Union as a State, it recognized and approved also Texas' established boundaries, including its seaward boundary, 10.5 miles out to sea beyond its coast line.

How in the face of this record can we now contend that the marginal waters belong not to Texas, but to the Federal Government? How, I again inquire, did the Federal Government come to possess this territory which Texas by our own admission, possessed when she came into the Union and which she has a ministered continuously ever since?

There is in this situation no obstacle to the establishment of extensive military reserves of petroleum off the coast of Texas to be held against a future emergency, if that policy be held wise. The

Principles Of Art

Before attempting a rebuttal to Mr. Coe's criticism of Themes and Variations in The Washington Post of May 20 I would like to testify that my being a member of the cast may color my opinions. On the other hand, Mr. Coe's views seem to be colored by an incomprehensible stand against "art."

Real art or estheticism seems to me to be an enhancement of the real and beautiful; by that I mean the emotion evoked in all men by perception of nature's magic and man's accomplishments and defeats in creating order out of a chaos of mixed thoughts, sounds and smells. Reaching this goal is no easy task and the embryo or even the full-blown artist may well be deceived into forsaking the roots of intellectual, emotional, or sensory aesthetics for the fruits on one of the branches such as a purely intellectual approach. This leads to coldness and detachment.

Surely this is the type of estheticism suspected by Mr. Coe in Themes and Variations. I protest. This play follows the art principles as they seem to me. Every element is designed to illuminate and enhance "the beauty and order of things" with each resting solidly on a completely moral and realistic thesis. The dialogue is very formal as is necessary in a semipolitical work.

Mr. Coe criticizes the music for its lack of originality. What is more fitting in a praise of existence than a familiar paean like the doxology? The shuffling and redistribution of notes in the score is the process used in almost all musical works with a recurring theme as the basis of the work. Mr. Coe's score was adapted to the theme of the play with keen insight and he should be admired for his delicate addition to the whole production.

Discourteous Reporting

The levity with which one of your so-called reporters on May 16 treated the attack on my colleague Mr. Saint Pol by thugs is entirely unbecomingly and has not even the justification of verisimilitude, since the gentleman in question is entirely bilingual. Your so-called reporter apparently had access to police records (which in my view should be private), saw the nationality of the victim and thought he would be funny. Your pages would be better utilized in attacking the police of this District for their laxity in allowing such thugs to be on the loose.

I wish to add that even had the victim of the attack had an accent or a lack of grammar of any kind, you would still be guilty of a breach of international courtesy in permitting such stuff to appear.

Dewey's Insight

THE REASONS for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's victory over Harold Stassen in Oregon are probably as many as the issues in that extraordinary campaign. But one factor which was more or less overlooked in the East carried a great deal of weight in the Pacific Northwest.

That is public power. Dewey took a clear and unmistakable stand. He said that America's rivers should be developed "on a regional basis," with public power projects pushed as rapidly as possible.

Stassen, on the other hand, was evasive. In Wisconsin, in reply to a question from one of his audiences, he said he was for the TVA and other developments like it. Campaigning in Nebraska, where the proposed Missouri Valley Authority is an issue, he indicated he favored a compromise development plan to be carried out by Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation.

The Pacific Northwest is a region of almost unlimited potentials for growth in every field. The people of the region know they must have public power if they are to create wealth from their far-flung resources. So Dewey was on the popular side in his forthright championship of the great projects which are possible in that region.

This is a lesson the Republicans in Congress should take notice of. In particular, it should be a warning to those new Republican Senators from the West who were swept into office on the tide of Republican sentiment in 1946.

THESE MEN have not worked for the projects that are vital to the West. Again and again they stood in the way of even mildly progressive legislation and they are, therefore, a definite handicap to the GOP in that part of the country, in this election year.

Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington became the darling of the real estate lobby when he tried various tricks to defeat the public housing provision in the Taft housing bill. Nevada's incredible Senator George W. Malone follows a narrowly reactionary line. So, in most instances, does Senator Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho.

The Republicans in the Senate face a test this week, and the outcome will be closely followed in the West even though that region is not directly involved. The Republican majority must decide whether it is to follow the lead of the House in eliminating from the TVA appropriation four million dollars to start construction of a steam plant considered essential to future power development in the Tennessee Valley.

The House acted on the recommendation of a committee that had listened to a long pep talk from Purcell Smith, the $65,000-a-year lobbyist for the utility industry. Smith, taking the swing to the GOP as a swing to complete reconstruction, decided the time was ripe to move in on the TVA.

Representatives from the TV region protested violently. But their protests were ignored as Republicans, joined by a few Democrats, followed the lead of Lobbyist Smith.

IF THE SENATE follows the same lead, there is likely to be an outcry, and not alone from the Tennessee Valley. In the Pacific Northwest they will understand that this means a policy hostile to the development of public power projects.

The South and the Northwest have in common the discriminations imposed by the East. These discriminations have made it difficult to establish regional industry. The South and the Northwest have been kept in the status of colonies supplying raw materials to the industry of the East.

The TVA has done a lot to break that bondage. It is an example which has not been lost on that other colony that rises in all its beauty and wealth from the shore of the Pacific. There is a widespread demand in the Northwest for a Columbia River authority capable of the same kind of unified approach as the TVA.

Dewey understood the meaning of the deep urge behind the desire to prosper and grow out of the bondage of Eastern domination. In his remarkably hard-hitting campaign he appealed to that urge and it unquestionably contributed to his triumph.

Before he entered the State for three weeks of such barnstorming as few local candidates ever undertake, he was considered hopelessly outdistanced by Stassen. But when the people of Oregon saw him and heard him and discovered that he had a sympathetic understanding of their special problems, they gave him a comfortable majority of their votes. It is one of the most striking success stories in American political history.

By Walter Lippmann

Vandenberg And Dewey

OF THE three active contenders for the nomination none will come to the convention having proved himself to be the decided choice of the great majority of the Republican voters. The choice will have to be made by an agreement among the leading delegates and party managers.

THEY WILL begin with certain facts which are now clearly established. One is that Mr. Stassen, though he has considerable popular strength, has nothing like the popular strength needed to override the determined opposition of Taft and Dewey and of a very large part of the Republican organization. Mr. Stassen's campaign has not been successful. He has estranged the party managers without winning the support of more than a part of the rank and file. As a result he cannot be nominated for President, almost certainly not even for Vice President, and his real problem today is to keep his place among the Republican leaders who will have to be considered in the formation of a Republican administration.

A SECOND fact is that Mr. Taft, though he has grown greatly in reputation and public esteem and, therefore, in personal influence, could not—even if nominated—be elected without a bitter and doubtful campaign. Against him Mr. Truman would have a good fighting chance, and, moreover, it is quite conceivable that General Eisenhower might be persuaded to accept the Democratic nomination to run against him.

A THIRD fact is that Mr. Dewey, while a much stronger candidate than Mr. Taft or Mr. Stassen, could not get the wholehearted support of all factions of the party, and would surely rouse the Democrats to a spirited campaign. His record in foreign affairs is not yet good enough to win him the confidence of the two million or more Republicans, largely conservative in domestic politics, who voted for Roosevelt in 1944.

Moreover, having been three times an active candidate for the nomination, he has made enemies as well as friends. The Stassen-Dewey relationship is one of those personal and factional feuds which are not easily healed. Yet Mr. Stassen is not only himself young, energetic, and ambitious but his active supporters are very active men. They are in fact a large part of the new generation of Republicans. The party must have them if it is to govern the country effectively. But they could not now be brought easily into an administration led by Governor Dewey.

THE CASE for Vandenberg is, subject to one consideration—that of his running mate—unusually compelling. Senator Vandenberg is not a "dark horse." There is nothing dark about him. He is the best known and most eminent statesman of his party. He is not only the man who divides the Republicans the least but he is the one who can most surely unite them.

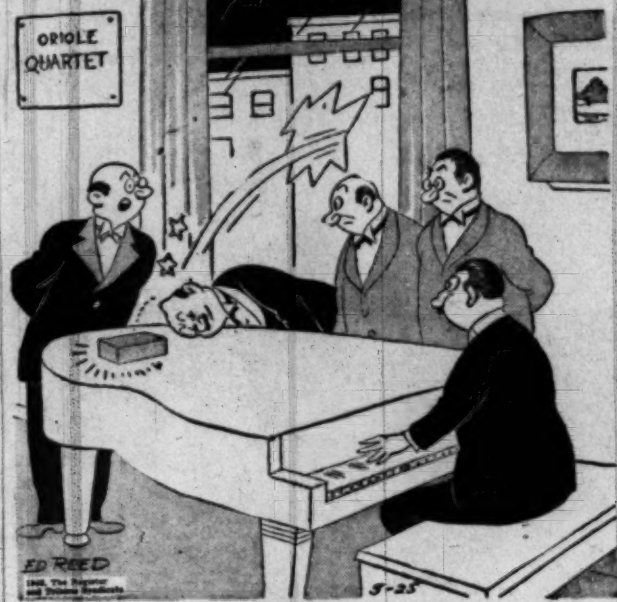

THERE ARE some differences between Taft and Vandenberg. But there can be no quarrel between them, and there would be no question that Taft would emerge as the leader of the party in Congress. There is no feud with Stassen, who has made it abundantly clear that Vandenberg is his first choice, once he has to accept the fact that he himself cannot be nominated. With Dewey there is a close affinity. The active supporters of Vandenberg could accept Dewey and be satisfied. The active supporters of Dewey could support Vandenberg without qualms and with much enthusiasm. Finally, it is no small matter, Vandenberg is for all practical purposes invulnerable to attack by the Democrats. For Mr. Truman can make no serious campaign against the man who has carried through Congress all the great measures on which Mr. Truman's claim to election would have to rest. There would be no problem for General Eisenhower to consider, and it is a fair assumption that if he took any public position, it would be in support of Vandenberg.

BUT THE whole case for Vandenberg's nomination will be undermined if the convention does not make a wise decision on the Vice-Presidency. Owing to his age Senator Vandenberg could not be asked or expected to serve for two terms. Therefore, unless the candidate for Vice President is a man entirely competent to be President and known to be devoted to a continuation of the general lines of policy in Vandenberg administration, the stability of the Government will be jeopardized. In a time when the country and the world need to be certain about the continuity of American policy, everything will be subject to accident and to acts of God.

It seems plain enough that all these risks would be avoided if the convention were to nominate, indeed to draft, Governor Dewey himself for the vice presidential nomination. For then it will have nominated two men, each qualified in his own right to be President. It will have joined with Vandenberg, whose greatest strength is that he has acquired moral wisdom and disinterestedness and an understanding of the great imponderables, a man who is without question the ablest executive and administrator of this generation. Serving under and with Vandenberg, Governor Dewey would have time to outgrow, as Senator Vandenberg has, his own past. He would have every prospect of becoming President after Vandenberg's one and only term. He would complete his own development and having acquired also, as he has shown he can, maturity and moral wisdom.

IT IS often said that if Governor Dewey cannot be President this time, he will prefer to finish out his term as Governor of New York and then to retire to a private law practice and make money. Why should he make Th. Dewey? Three times he has been a candidate for President. Can it be argued then that he can honorably refuse a nomination for Vice President, tendered to him because his party wishes to make sure that the succession to the Presidency will be guaranteed and safe? A man who refused the Vice-Presidency under these circumstances would write himself down as too ambitious, as lacking in humility and a sense of duty and, therefore, as not really qualified to be President. As a matter of fact, considering Mr. Dewey's age, considering the fact that Mr. Vandenberg would admittedly serve only for one term, considering the fact that Mr. Dewey cannot, like Bryan, be a perpetual candidate for the Presidency and for nothing else, the public interest and Mr. Dewey's legitimate personal ambitions coincide. If he accepted the nomination for Vice President with Vandenberg, their election would be certain. His opportunity for public service would be immense. His succession to the Presidency four years hence would be in the highest degree probable.

Italian Socialists

By Sumner Welles

Break With Communists Hopeful

IS ITALY to have a "third force"? That question can be answered only by the national assembly of the Socialist Party. The assembly must decide this summer whether the party is to remain the abject tool of Togliatti and his Communist henchmen or whether it will seek to promote socialism by democratic means, and to make socialism a bulwark for individual liberty.

In the past the trade unions were the source of the strength of the Italian Socialist Party. But when Italy was liberated the Communists enjoyed a decided ascendancy over the workers. They had secured key positions among the parliament during the war. They had used these to create a closely knit organization throughout the country. They had available large stores of arms and ammunition. Their propaganda was insidious and far-reaching. They had far more money to spend in political activities than any other party.

When the war ended, the Socialist Party had neither money nor organization. Its principal leader, Pietro Nenni, was merely an eloquent front. The dominant influence was the party secretary, Basso, who is a shrewd political manipulator, and a ruthless agent of the Communists. Although not more than 4 per cent of the members of the trade unions were Communists, Nenni and Basso quickly transferred the control of the general confederation of Italian labor into the hands of the professional organizers of the Communist Party. Socialism seemed to be doomed to extinction within the embrace of the Popular Front, that Moscow so long sponsored.

THE FIRST revolt took place a year ago, under the courageous leadership of Giuseppe Saragat. Joined by some 50 other Socialist deputies, unwilling, like himself, any longer to prostitute Italian labor to Soviet ambitions, Saragat founded his Socialist Party of Italian workers. He came to the United States and formed close ties with the democratic labor organizations in this country.

Saragat's example was soon followed by another dissenting Socialist, Lombardo, who established a new party named "Unita Socialista." Both leaders later joined the de Gasperi coalition cabinet. The platforms of these reformist Socialists are in general similar to that of the British Labor Party. In the national elections hundreds of thousands of workers deserted the Communist-controlled Popular Front to vote for Saragat's Democratic Socialist Party.

A further revolt was attempted last month, only a week after the recent elections. Giuseppe Romita, who had remained within the Socialist Party, demanded, at a meeting in Rome's historic Villa Malta, the liberation of socialism from the control of leaders who, he declared, "had their feet in the Socialist Party and their brains in the Communist Party."

National Debt of 252 Billions May Be Boosted, Snyder Says

Atlantic City, N. J., May 24 (AP)—The national debt of 252 billion dollars may be increased during the fiscal year starting July 1, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today.

Snyder said that not only will debt reduction "probably" come to an end but that a return to deficit financing by the Government is a "definite possibility."

The Secretary expressed his views at a news conference and in an address to the twenty-eighth annual conference of the National Association of Mutual Saving Banks.

The recent reduction in personal income taxes, plus the demands of the European recovery and domestic rearmament programs, are the main factors which will force the Government to operate in the red once again, Snyder said.

He indicated that at the moment inflationary forces seemed to be fairly well under control but added:

"The cumulative effect—if any—of the cut in income taxes, ERP and domestic rearmament will not be apparent until late fall."

The Secretary held out the hope that even if debt reduction comes to a halt in the year ahead, the Government may still be able to reduce further the volume of marketable debt.

"Only a portion of the 252 billion dollars of Government indebtedness is in the form of marketable obligations," he told some 600 savings bankers. "The remainder is in the form of savings bonds, savings notes, special issues to Government trust funds, and other non-marketable obligations."

"This non-marketable part of the debt may go up by something like three billion dollars during the year ahead, thus permitting a reduction in the total of the marketable debt."

"This is due primarily to the intensity with which we are pressing—and will continue to press—our savings bond campaign."

Day-to-Day Watch
 The Treasury, Snyder continued, is watching the money market on a day-to-day basis.

We will consider raising the rate on United States certificates of indebtedness "when and if the time comes," he added.

An increase in the certificate rate—the price the Government pays for borrowing money for one year—has been widely anticipated in banking quarters.

A few days ago, however, the Treasury announced that certificates would continue to be sold, at least up until September, at a rate of 1 1/2 per cent instead of an expected 1 3/4 per cent.

Earl B. Schwulst, president of the association and executive vice president of the Bowers Savings Bank, reported that mutual savings banks hold deposits of more than 18 billion dollars, a new record. Increases in the first quarter of this year, he said, amounted to about 248 million dollars.

Schwulst noted, though, that the rate of growth of savings has declined from a year ago.

World Bank Exemptions Voted

The Senate Banking Committee legislation is "urgent" because of the role the bank may play in European reconstruction.

The bill also would permit member banks of the Federal Reserve System to deal in International Securities Act and the National Bank Act.

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) cast the only negative vote. Earlier he had become involved in an exchange with Eugene R. Black, executive director of the bank, who criticized the Ohio Legislature.

Black said the Legislature rejected the bank's bonds for investment in Ohio. He said the issue had been misrepresented, and that the Legislature had been wrong.

Bricker interrupted to say that he "resented" Black's criticism. Black said that the exemption of or an increasingly reactionary alignment of the parties of the right and center. In Italy, as in France, there could be no greater threat to the survival of democracy.

Federal Powers Growth Assailed

Elon, N. C., May 24 (AP)—Virginia's Governor, William M. Tucker, today scored the "spectacular expansion" of Federal authority and warned that unless the Government's powers are checked "our democracy will be in the gravest peril."

Speaking to the graduating class of Elon College, the Governor described President Truman's civil rights program as one "filled with rights destruction proposals which if adopted would seriously impair"

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill to authorize creation of a national heart institute in the United States Public Health Service.

The bill authorizes Federal grants to hospitals, universities, laboratories and other agencies for heart disease research.

Va. Approves
2 Bus Routes

Transfer of two bus routes from the Arnold Lines of Arlington to the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. was given final approval of the Virginia State Corporation Commission yesterday.

The transfers, involving the only major routes operated by Arnold south of Columbia Pike, were placed into effect last Wednesday under temporary authority granted by both the Virginia commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Final action by the ICC is scheduled next Friday, when another hearing on the proposal will be held at the commission's headquarters.

Yesterday's action by the Virginia commission came in Richmond after a brief hearing, which produced no opposition to the route changes. The transfer previously had been recommended to the commission by the Arlington Public Utilities Commission.

Under the change, routes previously designated by Arnold as the 10th and Vermont sts. and Fairlington runs will be operated by A. B. & W. The only remaining Arnold operation south of Columbia Pike is its Green Valley route, a shuttle service running from Columbia Pike to the Shirlington Circle.

Publicity Held Important as Peace Factor

Improved public relations constitutes a basic essential to world peace, delegates to the third annual meeting of the American Public Relations Association were told here yesterday.

The role of public relations in bringing about better understanding among the world's nations was stressed by five speakers who formed an international panel on the subject, "Public Relations—Transworld," as the four-day session got under way at American University.

Panel speakers included Bernard J. Washincheck, president of Chippin Participations, Inc., of Washington; Nuzhet Baba, press attache of the Turkish Embassy; Dr. H. Van Zile Hyde, alternate American representative to the World Health Organization, and Chen Chih-mai, counselor of the Chinese Embassy.

During the discussion the group also heard a recorded talk by Frank Goldberg, governing director of an Australian advertising firm, who was unable to be here for the program.

The group has scheduled additional panel discussions today on other phases of public relations, including radio and television.

Highlight of the meeting is scheduled Thursday night, when the association will present its annual awards for outstanding accomplishments in the field of public relations.

About 250 delegates, including representatives of a dozen foreign countries, are participating.

Clubhouse Truce Reached By Women

The American Association of University Women has offered to let its Washington branch occupy the jointly operated clubhouse here for another month while a dispute over Negro membership is fought out.

The national group and the District branch share the building at 1634 1st st. n.w. under a year-to-year agreement.

National President Althea K. Hottel made clear in a letter to local branch officials that the national group was willing to defer action for one month, but that it would not constitute extension of the existing agreement "beyond June 30."

Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, branch president, said Mrs. Hottel's letter was addressed to the committee that runs the clubhouse for the two groups. Since the basic agreement is between the boards of directors of the two groups, she said, no specific action by the branch appeared to be in order.

The national group is seeking to expel the branch from the association as well as the clubhouse for refusal to admit Negroes as local AAUW members. The local group has a preliminary injunction to prevent the ouster until June 15 when arguments will be heard in District Court.

Wallace Would Ban Births on Submarginal Land

Salem, Oreg., May 24 (AP)—Henry Wallace presented his farm program here today and proposed a new Government prohibition to keep children from being born on submarginal farms.

"The Government should buy up land which can't be served by electricity. If people insist on living on such land, then the Government shouldn't let them have children," he asserted.

Later, he said he was "talking too fast."

He said apparently he had made the statement, but what he meant was, people with children shouldn't be allowed to live where facilities for electricity, schools and other services cannot be made available.

By The Associated Press
The University of Maryland moved into its commencement ceremonies yesterday with an honor and awards assembly for the presentation of prizes, medals and trophies to outstanding scholars, athletes and student activity leaders.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, and Federal Judge William P. Cole, jr., chairman of the board of regents, were the principal speakers.

Hundreds of students, most of them graduating seniors, were honored for their accomplishments either with individual prizes or as members of various societies.

The citizenship prizes offered by Dr. Byrd and Mrs. Albert F. Woods, widow of his predecessor as head of the university, went to Carroll Marie Hays of Baltimore and Robert Schrecongost of 109 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, Va.

The Goddard Memorial Medal for the native of Prince Georges County making the highest average and embodying outstanding leadership qualities went to Joshua Miller of Beltsville.

J., and Thomas Maloney of Cicero, Ill., for boxing; Sammy Bell of Orlando, Fla., and George Simler, for football; Eddie Loeper and William Nuttle of Baltimore and John and William Ruppberger of Catonsville for lacrosse, and Howard Gugel of Baltimore, track.

The Men's League Award for senior man contributing most to the welfare of University men went to Walter Fehr of Greenbelt, Md. Harry Bank of New York City, a football fullback, received the Linhard Maryland ring as the best athlete of the year in the graduating class.

Rifle awards went to Hilton Carter of College Park and Stephen Lemler of Baltimore.

Helen Brown of Greenbelt, Dave Clawson of Joppa, John Emmer of 1529 Michigan ave. n.e., Bill Halliday of Baltimore, Robert McLean of Bethesda Heights and Bud Wareham of Hagerstown got gold awards for outstanding work in the student band.

Keys were presented to staff members of the Diamond Back, the Old Line, the M-Book, and the Terpin. Initiates of Phi Kappa Phi, ODK, the Mortar Board, Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta honor societies also were introduced.

Editors Are Selected
At Maryland University

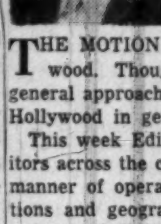

Allen Bowers, of Riverdale, Md., a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, yesterday was named to be the editor next year of the Diamondback, student weekly newspaper at the University of Maryland.

Arthur Cosing, of 806 Upshur st. n.w., a junior taking advertising in the College of Home Economics, was named editor of the Old Line, campus magazine.

Henry Saylor, of 6311 Eighth st. n.e., was named editor of the B-Book which is distributed each fall as a guide for entering freshmen. He is a senior in the College of Business and Public Administration.

Frank Masterson, of Catonsville, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, was named editor of the Terpin, University yearbook.

By Richard L. Coe

THE MOTION PICTURE HERALD is the Arch Voice of Hollywood. Though less fruity than the tone of Louella Parsons, its general approach is that the industry exists to sell tickets and that Hollywood in general is Wonderful.

This week Editor Terry Ramsaye is giving a report of 65 exhibitors across the country, as he says, "a cross-section representing all manner of operations, great and small, in widely diversified situations and geographically widely distributed."

As usual, Editor Ramsaye blooms with optimism: "As certain and as sure as the flowers that bloom in the springtime (sic) is the veridical optimism of the showman. Come what may and no matter how hard the winter and dull the days, in the eyes and hopes of showmanship everything is always going to be better, brighter than ever before. And so it is now in this spring of the perplexed year of 1948."

In the course of his article, Ramsaye quotes many exhibitors (the theater managers) and also prints a breakdown of 65 assorted watchmen. It's in the breakdown of these comments that one finds room for smiles. Of the 65, 33 definitely remark that "the product is terrible" and another 48 state that things "look better."

Such terms as "looks better," "will reach prewar quality" and "promise for better lineup" suggest that there is room for improvement, hint in fact that the recent past has been, as 33 outwardly state, "not good enough to overcome public apathy," "like to see Hollywood go back to work," or "improvement needed."

Somehow such outright remarks in Ramsaye's rosy reports are amusingly refreshing. Ramsaye sums it up this way:

"Clearly enough, in exhibitor reaction there is recognition that the more articulate national voices of the industry have been doing so much crying out loud about such matters as the British embargo tax, foreign sales difficulties in general, excitement about the courts, about politics, about Reds, that the public has had its attention diverted from its screen entertainment to news, mostly adverse news, about the industry. The exhibitor knows that the industry has been getting more, and hotter attention, than the pictures."

But, Davis on Critics

Though doubtless the film moguls are perusing Ramsaye's roundup, all this is no news to them, however shattering it may seem to regular readers of the Motion Picture Herald. For months now the top producers have been saying the same thing, suggesting varied "hypes" to overcome public apathy.

Bette Davis touched on much the same thing only the other day, though Miss D.'s tone was considerably more bitter than that of the third Samuel Goldwyn. Speaking of her latest, "Winter Meeting," Bette said that the responsibility for that one "is shared equally by all concerned. When we started, I thought it was going to be good, but it was very bad. Dullness is, perhaps, the unforgivable sin."

Men and women of good judgment and sound taste, remarked Bette, sometimes unintentionally turn out bad pictures. "When that happens," she added, "we know it before the critics do, but they still write their reviews as though they were giving us priceless information."

It's too bad so outstanding a player as Miss Davis takes this tone about the put-upon reviewers. What does she expect us to do? Tell the public that Miss Davis is "a person of good judgment and sound taste who sometimes, unintentionally, turns out bad pictures"? Miss Davis evidently forgets that the reviewers' responsibility is to the public, not to an individual's capriciousness.

Another feature of Ramsaye's report answers the question, "How's business?" Only two out of the 65 report it's normal; the other 63 say it's down, some as much as 40 per cent. But do they refer to the previous year, highest in industry records? With all justice to the theater managers, costs have zoomed for them—salaries, advertising and materials. Still it seems mildly absurd to complain because business is less than that of a peak year, especially when it takes most of the family income these days to pay the food freight and buy upped milk for the kiddies.

It all winds down, as it always does, to a demand for pictures worth seeing. The cheerful Ramsaye and your reverent reporter may not put it quite the same way, but that's the gist of the exhibitor's springtime dreams.

Bank Robber Wins Hearing In High Court

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Homer C. Price, who is doing 65 years for bank robbery, proved yesterday that if you keep on trying even the Supreme Court will listen to you.

After 10 years in Alcatraz, Price won his third appeal to the high court. He didn't win his freedom, but he did win an order for a hearing of his fourth plea for a writ of habeas corpus.

At the same time, Price won a ruling that United States Courts of Appeal have the power to have convicts brought before them to argue their own cases. He wanted to argue his, but was kept on "The Rock" when his case was heard.

The justices split 5 to 4 on the Price appeal, Justice Jackson said for the dissenters that the majority opinion—by Justice Murphy—gave convicts too much leeway.

Price hails from Matimora, Mich. Ten years ago he was picked up for bank robbery, and in short order found himself in Alcatraz.
After a couple of years he scrawled himself a plea for a writ of habeas corpus, and fought it all the way to the Supreme Court.

Two years later, he tried again, with the same outcome. Price's third try was lost in the Federal Court in San Francisco, and he was not allowed to appeal.

Early in 1946 he tried for the fourth time, coming to the Supreme Court when the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals turned him down. Government counsel were heard by this court, but not Price, who was in prison and had no lawyer.

Price has claimed, in his four pleas, that he was wrongly sent to prison because (1) Judge who sent him there was biased yet heard the case, (2) he did not get a proper appeal because his lawyer quit him when he ran out of money and he had to fight his own battle, and

(3) the prosecutors knowingly used false testimony against him.

Justices Black, Douglas, Rutledge and Burton joined Murphy in holding that Price must have a hearing on his fourth plea, even though many of his claims were turned down three times before.

Murphy said, too, that the circuit judges were wrong in thinking they had no power to call the convict before them to plead his own case.

Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Jackson, Frankfurter and Reed did not agree.

Besides ruling on the Price case,
the court yesterday:

Held that a man ordered locked up in a Federal prison at the end of his term in a State jail must go there when he is paroled, and may not stay free until his State "term" runs out.

Gunmen Get 'Little Sneeze'

Chicago, May 24 (AP)—A burst of bullets cut short Leo (Little Sneeze) Friedman's life at age 33 today, and police dug into his underworld connections for a motive.

The one-time bank robber went down with three head wounds at a west-side intersection early today as he walked with his wife, Carol, 26. The marksmanship was so expert she wasn't nicked.

Police learned two young men fired at Friedman after he tripped over an iron railing as he tried to escape the gunmen. The killers fled in a sedan driven by a third man.

Friedman had been an associate of policy racket leaders, police said, and investigators were checking through gambling circles for

In her hysteria, Mrs. Friedman at first told police her husband was an executive of the Mercury Record Distributing Co. of Chicago.
It was found that he had no connection with the firm although his brother, Harry, was employed there.

Charles Town Has $1662 Double, Doping

Man Falls Dead Before Third Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 24

1. Seven lucky ticket holders collected $1662.80 for investing $2 in the daily double.

2. An 11-year-old gelding named Buss won the second race and paid $97.20 to win, $27.20 to place and $10.20 to show.

3. A doping case was revealed by the stewards, involving a $45.80 winner on May 19, and his trainer was suspended for six months.

4. An unidentified man dropped dead before the third race.

The mountaineer pay-off in the daily double, the local record is $3350 on the "6 and 2" combination. Jockey Eddie Anyon won the first race with Mrs. R. M. Ferrara's Betel, a Washington-owned horse, paying a $19.40 mutuel.

Wide Turns Helped

The second race provided the big monetary punch, however, Buss, ridden by Kenny Foster, profited by horses running wide into the stretch and came on to win by a length.

Trainer L. Colon Rodriguez was the conditioner who figured in the steward's ruling. The chemist for the West Virginia Racing Commission reported a positive finding of stimulation to the horse, First Party, winner of the eighth race on May 19.

The horse, along with all others trained by Rodriguez, were suspended with the conditioner for the period of six months, the limit allowed under this state's rules.

The stewards ordered the purse money redistributed with the new order of finish—Foster, Clipman, Miss Stevie and Dawndale.

Death a Mystery

The fatally stricken man lacked identification cards. However, through his eyeglass case and hat, which he believed he was from Hanover, Pa.

The day's feature race was won by J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime, a four-year-old filly, who is becoming the half-mile speed king.

Civil Service Committee Due to Lose Chavez, Good Friend of Worker

SENATOR CHAVEZ (D., N. Mex.) is slated to reluctantly give up his seat on the Civil Service Committee. He's a staunch friend of the Federal worker and he'll be missed.

The death of Senator Overton (D., La.) put Chavez in line for a seat on the Appropriations Committee. He's the ranking Democratic member on the Public Works Committee, a post he will retain, since it's of great benefit to his State of New Mexico. The law limits his service to two major committees.

Chavez is coauthor of the new and liberal Civil Service retirement law; he's joined with Chairman Langer (R., N. Dak.) in advocating substantial pay raises for Federal workers, and he was the leader in the fight that got the pay bill out of the Senate committee.

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) will move up to Chavez's seat as ranking Democratic member of the Civil Service Committee. He's also ranking on the Appropriations Committee, which means that Senator Johnston (D., S. C.) would be chairman of the Civil Service Committee if the Democrats regain control of the Senate in November.

REVENUE: The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved funds to hire 5000 additional Internal Revenue agents and collectors, and to lift the salaries of about 20,000 employees an average of $300 each.

NOTES: In his special message to Congress on Social Security, the President urged that Federal workers be brought in under unemployment compensation.

Tyler Wood, former State official, is an assistant to Howard Bruce, deputy director of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

The Civil Service Commission has rejected the appeal of Herbert Bell to be chief of the fuel requirements division of Interior's Bureau of Mines. Bell is a brother-in-law of John L. Lewis and he was laid off in a reduction of force last year.

PROMOTIONS: The Stevenson subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday okayed the Rees bill to give temporary postoffice custodial employees in-grade raises of $100 each.

During the hearing, Ismar Baruch of the Civil Service Commission testified that the commission would issue an order to go into effect as of July 1, that would make temporary employees in all lines of work eligible for in-grade promotions.

GS: The Senate committee will meet today to hear a report by Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) on his bill that would set up a Federal corporation to operate cafeterias in Government buildings.

WHITE HOUSE: The man who has read the President's mail for the past 51 years will retire Friday. He's Ira R. Smith who has been chief of the White House mail for all those years.

On the same day his wife, Emma S., also will retire from the Veterans Administration. This career couple has served Uncle Sam ably and well for 81 years, a most unusual accomplishment.

Smith was appointed to the White House staff by President McKinley. His first job was to answer Mrs. McKinley's mail at a time when the White House received 800 to 400 letters a day. It's now 10 times that number.

Smith is the oldest employee in point of service at the White House. He'll be 73 in August. The President considered his services so valuable that he had him exempted from the 70-year compulsory retirement system.

The Smiths will get into their car Friday morning and start out for their new home in Santa Barbara, Calif. The White House staff from the President down has wished them well.

EXAMS: Civil Service yesterday asked each agency to supply it with data on the number of war service and temporary employees it has in each grade. It will use the information on which to base its new schedule of Civil Service exams. Each agency also has been requested to submit its suggestions for exams to be given.

SKILLED JOBS: The Naval Gun Factory here has Civil Service exams open for these jobs: engine-man, modelmaker, sewage disposal plant operator, water-tender, rigger, cement finisher and aircraft instrument mechanic. The factory also has openings for 136 machinists, 36 boiler-makers, and many other types of jobs.

TESTS: Early in June Civil Service will announce exams for Patent Office examiners, and for interns and residents-in-training in psychiatry at St. Elizabeth's Hospital here. Only 193 persons qualified in the library assistant exam held last October, and 137 for the research psychologist test.

STENOS: A new stenographer-typist test will be given next month by Civil Service. A total of 8787 persons throughout the country have applied for it since January 21. Stenos will be required to take dictation at the rate of only 80 words a minute. The former rate was 96 words. More than 8600 of the applicants are in this city. They will be examined from June 7 to 30.

Senate Group Gets Bill for New GSI Today

Plan Would Set Up U. S.-Controlled Corporation With Seven Directors

The Senate Civil Service Subcommittee, headed by Senator Baldwin, following months of hearings and study, yesterday completed a bill to do away with the two million dollar Government Services, Inc., and replace it with a new Government-controlled corporation.

The Senate Baldwin subcommittee, following months of hearings and study, yesterday completed a bill to do away with the $2,000,000 Government Services, Inc., and replace it with a new government-controlled corporation.

The full Senate Civil Service Committee will take up the bill today.

A similar bill already has been introduced in the House. Under it the new corporation would limit the new corporation to running cafeterias and restaurants in government buildings.

The Baldwin subcommittee bill, on the other hand, would place the new corporation in charge of all the 120 activities now run by the GSI both here and out of town.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.), voted unanimously for the new corporation over the protests of GSI officials, who attended yesterday's session.

The new corporation would be managed by seven directors, as follows: Federal Works Administrator, Secretary of Interior, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, president of the corporation, and three non-Senate appointments.

GSI employees would be transferred to the new corporation, with the way opened for bringing them under the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Senate Passes 9 Pieces of D.C. Legislation

The Senate yesterday passed, without comment, nine pieces of District legislation.

Of those approved yesterday, the two major bills—dealing with control and sex offenses—will be sent back to the House for approval of amendments. Both bills have already been passed by the lower chamber.

The army bill places control of the new D. C. army under a three-man commission. One member of the commission would be named by the National Guard; one by the District Commissioners, and the third would be selected by the heads of the Senate and House District Committee. The House bill names the architect of the Capitol as the third man on the commission.

The sex offenses bill makes more stringent the laws against sexual pervers who prey on children, and provides for medical treatment of the offenders. Minor changes in the Senate version of the legislation sent it back to the House for reapproval.

Three bills dealing with preparations for the presidential inauguration ceremonies in 1949.

Setting up the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington as a one-member corporation for conducting church business in the archdiocese.

Allowing expansion from 15 to 30 the number of trustees for the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation here.

Okayed and sent to the House for action was a bill authorizing $29,500 in payments to 11 home owners whose property was damaged, over and above the money they received in prewar condemnation awards, in the widening of Eastern ave.

In Guard Row Cox Hints Disciplinary Measures

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, head of the District National Guard, may have to take some disciplinary action as an aftermath of the "Battle of the Colonels" over the command of the Guard in his absence, he said yesterday as he began an investigation.

He had left Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general, in command, he declared Sunday on his return after a month's trip to Europe. However, Col. LeRoy S. Mann had asserted that his seniority over Col. Nevitt, based on date of rank, entitled him to head the Guard while the commanding officer was away.

General Cox would not say whether he contemplated action against Colonel Mann, who had directed Colonel Nevitt to inform the National Guard personnel that he (Mann) was in charge. Colonel Nevitt had promptly informed the Guard to the contrary, whereupon Colonel Mann appealed to the White House.

"I won't take any action or make any decision until I have made a full investigation into the facts," said General Cox, who planned to read all orders that went back and forth in the colonels' controversy.

His investigation is being made on his own, he explained, as he hasn't been asked for any report by the White House.

Hyattsville's Tax Rate Cut Eight Cents

Hyattsville City Council last night adopted a town tax rate of 57 cents per $100 valuation, a reduction of 8 cents under the present rate.

The new rate, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, was estimated to yield $125,887.09 from the town's total assessed valuation of $13,741,945.

The reduction in the rate was made possible, city officials said, by a $23,290.17 budgetary surplus from the current year.

The 37-cent town general tax rate is augmented by a 10-cent fire rate, estimated to yield $13,741.95. The fire rate is the same as that of the current year.

The town budget, adopted along with the tax rate, provides for nine new items.

These include: $7655 for road improvements, $3677.90 for a new road truck, $755 for a new snow plow, $2800 for a road foreman, $100 for services of a physician as city health officer, $2000 for 131 new street signs, $4100 for a new trash truck, $2000 for the town's contribution to a city employees' retirement plan, and $855 for office equipment for the town treasurer's office.

The council, during its meeting, voted down 4 to 3 proposals for $200-a-year pay increases for full-time members of the fire department and for the police department sergeant and four privates and for a $100 pay raise for the town's chief.

A. Kahn, Inc., Not Suit Defendant

A. Kahn, Inc., was erroneously listed as one of five defendants in a damage action brought by the District of Columbia Citizens Publishing Co., in District Court, attorneys for the plaintiff announced yesterday.

The charge pertaining to the jewelry concern was dropped after it was learned the firm's name had been included in the list of defendants due to erroneous information received by the plaintiff from a credit agency, according to Eugene E. Bitto, attorney for the publishing company.

The company is seeking $225,000 damages from the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and four merchants on the ground they boycotted advertising in the District of Columbia Citizen, official organ of the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

Jury Rules Hacker Must Face Negligent Homicide Charge

A coroner's jury ordered a negligent homicide charge yesterday against a 24-year-old Bethesda hacker.

The jury heard how Ernest F. Lee, 4521 Fairfield dr., Bethesda, struck down a pedestrian March 7 during a night of revelry with friends and failed to aid his victim.

On May 6, Lee was handed a $75 fine by Municipal Court Judge Nadine Gallagher, after pleading guilty to a hit-and-run charge and not to contend to a charge of failure to give full time and attention, which grew out of the accident.

His victim, Arno O. Teumer, 63, Raleigh Hotel waiter who lived at 2831 27th st. n.w., died Friday night at Casualty Hospital. He was hit about 1 a. m. March 7 while crossing the street in the 1200 block of Pennsylvania ave. n.w.

The coroner's jury, after hearing the story of a misty night, slippery streets and tavern visits, bound Lee over to the criminal division of Municipal Court for action. The jury deliberated 30 minutes.

Paul F. Downs, 24, another Bethesda cab driver who was one of three passengers in Lee's vehicle, testified the party got started about 9 p. m. March 6. Tours of District and near-by Maryland taverns followed.

Miss Sue Lynch, 22, of 10077 Sidney rd., Silver Spring, who was with Lee, testified he "was not acting other than normal—I wouldn't say he was drunk."

Downs, 4531 Middleton lane, Bethesda, said he was sitting in the back seat behind the driver with a Dora Mae Leonard when he "heard a bump, a noise."

About a block later, he told the jury, Lee pulled up to the curb, got out and went back. He returned within five minutes, said he had hit somebody and "would get aid."

Then, said Downs, Lee drove the party to a nightclub below the hacker's confession, which the jury heard yesterday.

2 Virginians Die in D. C. of Traffic Injuries

D. C. traffic deaths 1948... 33 Deaths this day last year... 30 Total traffic deaths 1947... 72

Two men, both of them Virginia residents, died in Greater Washington hospitals yesterday as result of injuries suffered in traffic accidents.

One of the fatalities was the result of a Washington accident and increased the District auto death toll for the year to 33. The victims were:

Jeremiah F. Steele, 50, of 4-A Auburn ct., Auburn Gardens, Alexandria, Va., who died at 6:10 p. m. at Emergency Hospital.

Aubrey L. Thompson, 32, carpenter for a Centerville, Va., real estate firm, who died in Arlington Hospital.

Steele was injured last Friday when his automobile was in collision with a streetcar at 7th st. and Independence ave. s.w.

Police said the streetcar, operated by Joseph W. Runion, 27, of 917 Dameron st., Alexandria, split a switch as it started to turn from 7th st. into Independence ave., struck Steele's auto and overturned it.

Steele's wife, Florence, 36, was in the automobile but she escaped with bruises.

Thompson, the other victim, who was struck by an automobile Sunday night while walking on Route 211 just east of Centerville, had played for the Centerville baseball team that afternoon and was still in uniform at the time of the accident. He suffered head injuries, a broken right leg and multiple cuts.

An enthusiastic ball player, Thompson played center field for his team Sunday, bringing in one run.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Thompson of Centerville, and three brothers and four sisters.

Basesy V. Garrett, of Broad Run, Va., driver of the eastbound car involved, was held on a charge of reckless driving by Fairfax County (Va.) police.

The victim, who was apparently walking to his home, a cabin near the Wayside Inn at Centerville, was reported to have been thrown on the hood of the Garrett automobile by the impact. Another Washington-bound car was forced off the road to avoid another collision, police said.

Mrs. Clara M. Clarke, 25, 4404 Jennifer st. n.w., wife of Pvt. Raymond J. Clarke of the Police Accident Prevention Unit, and her 4-year-old son, Raymond J., Jr., were seriously injured yesterday when her car overturned at 25th st. and Virginia ave. n.w. after a collision with another automobile. A second child, James P. Clarke, was treated for minor injuries.

Mrs. Clarke was in undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital, where Raymond was treated for a fractured skull and later transferred to Georgetown Hospital.

The driver of the other car, Carlyle B. Burdette of 800 S. Washington st., Alexandria, Va., was charged with failing to yield the right of way. His passengers, J. B. Ellis of Appalachia, Va., was treated at Emergency for cuts.

Sonya Bryan, 17, 811 Quincy st. n.w., daughter of Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan, was seriously injured on her way to school yesterday morning when she was struck by a Capital Transit bus at the corner of Georgia ave. and Upshur st. n.w.

She was reported in serious condition with brain concussion and a possible fractured skull at Emergency Hospital. The bus was being operated by Otis E. Caps, 21, of 11 W. Bellefonte ave., Alexandria, Va., police reported.

L. Grover, 54, a retired Marine Corps major, was struck by an auto in Arlington yesterday as he passed around the front of a halted bus into the path of traffic on Washington blvd. at Powhattan st.

Taken to Arlington Hospital following the accident at 7:40 a. m. yesterday, Grover was later transferred to Bethesda Naval Hospital, where his condition was described as fair. A desk clerk at the Raleigh Hotel, Grover lives at 1601 N. McKinley rd., Arlington.

He is suffering from cuts, bruises, a broken hip and shock, Arlington police said. Driver of the car is Herbert E. Sterling, Jr., 42, of 1801 N. Tuckahoe st., Arlington.

Cart One Away 2 Safe Jobs Net Yeggmen $2040 Cash

Toting off one 300-pound safe and cracking another 250-pound safe, muscular yeggmen netted $2040 in cash and $1000 in checks over the weekend.

The 300-pound safe, loaded with $2000 in cash and $1000 in checks, vanished from the Schwartz Pharmacy, 1700 Connecticut ave. n.w., according to Oscar Krampf, store manager.

Entrance was gained to the store, police said, by forcing a spring lock and unhooking the screen door of the R st. entrance.

Discovery of the theft was made about 7 a. m. by Lynn Haney, who runs the soda fountain.

Manager Krampf said the drug store was last burglarized some 10 years ago when thieves looted about $300 from a drawer.

The other safe job was reported at the Old Dominion Casket Co., 1501 North Capitol st., where a 250-pound safe was carried from the first floor to the basement. The bottom was chiseled off and $40 stolen.

Traffic Ticket Adjustment Makes a Profit

The Police Department last week made the District $8 richer when it adjusted tickets given to four people for parking on a lot at the investigation of a solicitor.

Mrs. Lucy C. Osmond, 1209 Kennedy st. n.w., said she parked on the lot at First st. and Oklahoma ave. n.e., and went to the circus Tuesday after she had been invited to park there by a man. She said she paid him 75 cents.

Lieut. John Ryan, acting captain of the Ninth Precinct, assigned detectives to the area for the evening show and four men were arrested and charged with unlicensed soliciting.

Lieutenant Ryan said the four solicitors forfeited $5 collateral each on the charge. Parking tickets for Mrs. Osmond and three other victims would have netted police only $12.

The four cancellations were among 128 tickets which were adjusted by the Police Department during the week of May 16-23. Seven of the adjustments were for individuals who claimed diplomatic immunity and one was a District official.

John W. Batson, 305 Adams st. n.e., District superintendent of trees and parking, received a ticket for parking less than 40 feet from an intersection. Police gave him a warning after he said was unaware of the regulation.

The diplomatic immunities were claimed by: Istvan Elaszser, 3110 Woodland dr. n.w., charged with parking in a no parking zone at any time zone; Norberto Valle, 1440 Meridian pl. n.w., parked less than 25 feet from a stop sign; L. Fleury de Barros, Brazilian Embassy, parked near a loading zone; Camille Lehmann, French Embassy, no parking at any time; Jean R. Dupard, French Embassy, no parking 4-6 m. and Eugene L. Demont, 2930 Porter st. n.w., parked overtime.

Md. Electrical Contractor Is Indicted in $6200 Theft

A Seat Pleasant, Md. electrical contractor yesterday was indicted by the grand jury for the theft of more than $6200 from four persons to whom he had promised to deliver war surplus goods.

The jury indicted Clyde R. Henderson, 51, of 6301 Foote st., with 23 counts each of grand larceny and larceny after trust.

He is alleged to have accepted the money for lumber, nails, radiators, paint, carpenter tools, furniture and other items, all of which he failed to deliver, from the following four complainants between May 1947, and February, 1948:

John R. Crown of 1234 H st. n.e., owner of the Crown Lock & Key Shop; Henry J. Dreher, contractor, of 1800 Connecticut ave. n.w.; Mrs. Flora Taylor Johnson of 1328 Fairmont st. n.w., whose son is a plumber, and Jack H. Young of 211 Pennsylvania ave. se.

The grand jury also indicted Merle Revell, 42, and Theodore Self, 38, for impersonation of a police officer and attempted blackmail of Miller L. Wimer of 16 Channing st. n.w.

Wimer has charged that he gave Revell a ride home on April 4 and they stopped at the apartment of a friend, where Revell said he was a detective and threatened to arrest Wimer on trumped-up sex charges.

The next day, Revell brought Self, who he said was a police sergeant, to Wimer and both of them told Wimer they would accept $25,000 in bonds and securities from him as his bond on the charges.

Victim Identifies Prisoners as Pair Who Robbed Him Early Sunday

Two youths yesterday were ordered held by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for grand jury action in a $6 holdup Sunday of a cab driver.

They were Anthony M. Marracco, 19, of Cumberland, Md., held under $1000 bond, and George Brown, 22, of 637 I st. n.w., who police said once served 14 months for a Chicago auto theft, held under $3000 bond.

Police Pts. V. D. Spanangle and A. D. Sweeney, of the Twelfth Precinct, said they spotted Marracco on description while he was riding in a Capital Transit bus near the holdup scene, 30th and Channing sts. n.e., early Sunday.

They said they trailed the bus, stopped it at 15th st. and Benning rd. n.e., and arrested Marracco when they found the cab's wallet in his pocket.

Police learned from Marracco who his colleague was and then arrested Browning at his home Sunday night, they said.

The victim, Maurice C. Frye, 39, of 4913 Washington pl. n.e., identified both men as passengers he picked up at 7th st. and Rhode Island ave. n.e., about 12:15 a. m. Sunday.

They told him to drive to 3108 Channing st. n.e., and at 30th and Channing sts. n.e., placed a "hard object" against his neck, Frye said, ordering him to stop the cab, get out and turn over his money and pocket watch.

Marracco told police Browning fled in the cab when he espied headlights of a passing car. Marracco and the cab driver fled on foot, in different directions—Marracco to get on a bus, Frye to call police.

Police said that another cab driver, Morris C. Dewey, of 1267 Owens pl. n.e., identified Browning as the man who robbed him early Friday of $29.65.

Hospital Inmate Loses Appeal

Robert E. Askins, 28, an inmate of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, yesterday lost his appeal for reconsideration of his admittance to the hospital.

Committed to St. Elizabeth's in April, 1939, after he was indicted for murder of two women, he was found to be still of unsound mind at a District Court hearing in January, 1947.

He appealed the decision and asked to appear again in District Court. Since no complete record had been kept of the hearing, he asked that the District Attorney and himself "agree" upon the evidence. The appeal was denied by District Court after a dispute arose over the facts in the case.

Askins then asked the United States Court of Appeals to settle the matter. The appellate court ruled yesterday it could not intervene because it had no way of determining the true facts.

Shelton Conviction Upheld In Car Theft Upheld

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday turned down an appeal from Jay Paul Shelton, 30, former Arlington automobile salesman, on his conviction for auto theft.

Shelton was sentenced to serve from 1 to 5 years on the auto-theft charge in February, 1947. A month earlier he had been found guilty of perjury in obtaining title for an auto in 1944. The perjury conviction was later reversed.

At the time of the hearing, he was serving a 3-year sentence in Atlanta for escaping from the custody of a United States marshal in October, 1944. The much legally-entangled Shelton also has been acquitted of attempted bank robbery and abduction charges.

He appealed the car theft conviction on the grounds that the trial took place in the same court in which he had been convicted of perjury four years earlier. He also alleged that a witness in the trial committed perjury and that the court was in error in admitting evidence of his arrest and trial for other offenses.

The Appellate Court ruled that the assertions of errors were not supported by the record or controlling law.

Injury Damages Upheld

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a District Court jury's decision to award Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gleason of Savannah, Ga., $7000 damages for injuries received when she fell on a step in the chapel of the Academy of the Holy Cross in December, 1945.

The jury had awarded Mrs. Gleason $5500 for the injured hip and her husband $1500 for expenses and loss of his wife's services.

The jury's verdict later was set aside by District Court Justice Jennings Bailey but was upheld by the appellate court yesterday on the grounds that the jury must have found that the step was a danger and that her injury was caused by the Academy's negligence.

Postlude Gold Star Concert Disappoints

By Paul Hume
The Gold Star Wives of America, Inc., presented Jean Dickenson, soprano, in concert last night in Constitution Hall.

The organization, as described, is doing an eminently worthy work. It is a pity that they could not secure a finer artist, and a larger house. It looked as if around 200 people were in the hall.

Miss Dickenson was accompanied ineptly by William Hughes, assisted by Robert Cary, flutist, and relieved by Mary Michna, pianist.

Billed as the "nightingale of the air waves," Miss Dickenson casts unjust aspersions upon that singing bird of high repute. Her pitch is often distressingly far from the mark, her tone tight and shrill, her interpretation dull as a dead mouse.

Her enunciation, due no doubt to her years of radio work, was perfectly clear and except for strange things in the word "nature" excellent. Her program was unusually more good American songs than either of the baritone who sang all-American programs in Washington last week. Too bad she can't sing.

Mary Michna, the pianist, showed little talent and much bad playing.

Group Conducts Secret Probe of Condon Loyalty

By the United Press
A House American Activities subcommittee has been holding secret hearings on the loyalty of Dr. E. U. Condon for more than a week. It was disclosed yesterday.

Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, was described by the committee, nearly three months ago, as "one of the weakest links in our atomic security." Condon demanded a public hearing.

Informed sources revealed that a subcommittee headed by Representative Richard B. Vail (R., Ill.) has questioned secretly some 100 employees of the Bureau of Standards during the past week.

These witnesses were asked, among other things, whether Condon had ever brought any pressure to bear on them to join the American-Soviet Science Society.

Vail announced that a Yale history professor, John M. Morskala, has been subpoenaed to appear today for questioning.

Ferguson Plans To Force Vote on Anti-Lynch Bill

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), indicated yesterday he is ready to try a flanking movement to force a Senate vote on anti-lynching legislation, one of President Truman's disputed civil rights proposals.

He revealed his plans after the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which he is a member, failed again after nearly a month's deliberation to approve an anti-lynch bill recommended by subcommittee.

"I have told the committee that I now feel at liberty either to seek to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill or to attach it (as a rider) to any other legislation," Ferguson said.

Ferguson did not say when he will seek action on his plan.

Open Air Choral Fete Planned by Foundry Church

Plans for an open air choral festival and hymn sing at the Sylvan Theater June 20 have been announced by Justin Lawrie, general chairman and choirmaster at Foundry Methodist Church.

A similar interdenominational hymn sing last year attracted more than 10,000 people to the festival, Lawrie said.

The program will open at 7:45 p. m. with a concert by the Salvation Army band, followed by community hymn singing. Dr. Robert Howe Harmon, director of the George Washington University Glee Club, will lead the singing.

Bobbins Makers Charged by FTC With Pricing Plot

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday charged the Bobbin Manufacturers Association of Boston, and 11 manufacturers, with a conspiracy to restrain price competition in the sale of bobbins and other spinning and weaving devices.

The commission's complaint named the following manufacturers: American Bobbin Co., Lewiston, Me.; James H. Billington Co., Inc., Philadelphia; Bowen-Hunter Bobbin Co., East Corinth, Vt.; Dana S. Courtney Co., Chicopee, Mass.; David Brown Co., U. S. Spool and Bobbin Co., and H. P. Spool and Bobbin Co., all of Lawrence, Mass.; Lowell Shuttle Co., and Walter L. D. J. Mustoine Rites Slated For Wednesday

Funeral services for Donald J. Mustoine, 63, author widely known by the pen name of John A. Ringmaster, will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

A resident of Washington for more than 30 years, Mr. Mustoine died Sunday at Mount Alto Hospital.

After an illness of five months, he lived at 1815 P st. se.

Mr. Mustoine was a native of Nogales, Ariz., and was the author of several volumes of poetry and other writings, many of which centered on American Indian lore. He was a frequent visitor to Indian reservations in the West, and to Mexico, where he obtained information for many of his legends.

Shortly before his death he had been engaged in research relating to Indians in this area, and he had completed a considerable portion of a manuscript centering on tribes along the Potomac.

Mr. Mustoine had lived in Washington on two occasions, returning here about 25 years ago after spending several years in California. He was an Army veteran of World War I and was a past department chaplain of the Disabled American Veterans of the District; a member of the Federal Chapter, DAV, and the District of Columbia Unit of the 40 and 8 Society; and at the time of his death, was chaplain of the Kenneth H. Nash Post, American Legion.

He also was a charter member of the Los Angeles, Calif. post, at the time it was organized by the late Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. in 1919.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Lenore L. Mustoine, an attorney with the Department of Agriculture here.

Donovan to Serve As Counsel for Polk Death Probe

General William J. Donovan, director of the wartime Office of Strategic Services, has agreed to serve as counsel for the Overseas Writers Committee to inquire into the murder of George Polk.

Polk, a Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent, was found dead of Saltonika Bay, Greece, eight days ago. He was shot through the head, his arms were bound, and an autopsy disclosed that he died by drowning.

Walter Lippmann, special writer for the New York Herald Tribune and The Washington Post, chairman of the Overseas Writers Committee, said:

"The committee feels that General Donovan's acceptance of this invitation will give the American public in general and the newspapers, radio and magazine professions confidence that the inquiry will be thorough and penetrating. It goes without saying, I hope, that General Donovan, like the members of the committee, is serving without compensation."

Widow of 62 Found Dead In Channel

The body of a woman found in the Washington Channel yesterday was identified as that of Mrs. Minnie Mae Shelton, 62-year-old widow, of 748 Quebec pl. nw.

Identification was made by one of two daughters, who had been scouring the city for her mother after discovery of a note which said: "Going to Hains Point."

The body was located by police near the seawall opposite O st. sw. in the morning, after a woman's black coat was found over a railing.

Identification was made at 3 p. m. by Mrs. Bobbie Faircloth of 1875 Mintwood pl. nw. The other daughter is Mrs. Janet Rhodes, who lives at the Quebec pl. address.

Mrs. Shelton was the widow of a construction engineer who died 14 years ago. She had been suffering from sciatica, according to Mrs. Rhodes.

Old Letters Saved From Fire Here Now in Library

Thousands of eighteenth and nineteenth century letters, and other documents written by Marylanders and Virginians were discovered when they were thrown out of a barn here during a fire last New Year's Eve, a Library of Congress official revealed yesterday.

The documents, including a business letter of George Washington, were saved by John Beverley Riggs of the Library's manuscript section. Children were playing with them in an alley following the fire at 219 Randolph pl. ne.

The papers are being processed for preservation in bound volumes. They were written by and to prominent persons connected with Samuel Galloway, colonial owner of the Tulip Hill mansion which still stands above West River, near Annapolis.

Mrs. Paul Wayland Bartlett, a Galloway descendant and owner of the property where they were found, gave the papers to the Library.

G.O.P. Dance at 'Victory Ball'

By Elizabeth Maguire

The Republicans will win the election by a slow walk if, last night's "victory ball" at the Mayflower is any criterion. Well over 500 members of the party crowded the ballroom in a dignified manner at the League of Republican Women's party. And a new song and dance, called "The Republican Glide" was introduced, which has more grace than pep.

Beautiful Mrs. John Davis Lodge led the glide with Col. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, and heavy of belles and beaux followed. Soon the entire guest list fell into line and everybody was gliding and pinning the tail on the donkey.

Mrs. Joseph Rider Farrington headed the receiving line and next came Mrs. Alice Burks Summers. Then Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Robert A. Taft, Senator Taft, Mrs. James C. Wilkes and Mr. Wilkes.

'Happy Days'

The orchestra struck up "Happy Days" and soon the floor was filled with dancing couples. Mr. and Mrs. George Abell twirled around and Senator Owen Brewster looked happy while the orchestra played "Look for the Silver Lining."

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz were in the gathering and Mr. and Mrs. John Begg, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Col. William F. Culbertson, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Representative Katherine St. George in champagne chignon, Mrs. Sylvia Shattuck, Col. Hugh Butler, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner and Mrs. Thad Brown, new national committeewoman.

Senatorial Group

Others were Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, Senator James P. Kem, Miss Evelyn Kem, Senator and Mrs. Homer E. Capehart, Senator and Mrs. Kenneth S. Wherry, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy and Vice

Married

In the Fifth Baptist Church on May 15, Miss Susi Engel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Engel of Bavaria, Germany, became the bride of Thomas E. Slocum of Washington. The Rev. John G. Cobern officiated. The couple will make their home in Washington.

'Aunt Mary' Norton Sees Prices As Leading Campaign Issue

By Genevieve Reynolds

Representative Mary T. Norton, fare work if interested in politics. yesterday predicted that the high cost of living will be the predominant issue in the forthcoming political campaigns. The New Jersey Congresswoman made her prognosis at a press conference held in her office following an announcement that she has been recommended by the executive committee to serve as chairman of the important credentials committee at the Democratic National Convention July 12 in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Norton's name was presented by India Edwards, executive director of the Democratic Party's women's division. In issuing the announcement, Mrs. Edwards said that "Aunt Mary," as Mrs. Norton is affectionately known around Washington, is the first woman to be offered this honor.

Men to Market

Hitting hard at the high cost of living, the Representative, who was the first Democratic woman to be elected to Congress, remarked, "Every man should have the experience of going to market. Then high prices wouldn't just be vague terms."

She said that the actual high cost of living was brought home to her when her cook was ill recently and requested her to do the marketing. She also told of a niece, "Mary," who ordinarily purchased 16 quarts of milk daily for her four children and husband but had to curtail the supply because of high prices.

Asked what the remedy was, Mrs. Norton replied, "Elect a Democratic Congress. I don't want price controls, but unless living costs are reduced some controls will be essential. People just can't buy enough food for their families. Apparently the Republican Congress won't bring the cost of living down. Food has gone up 50 per cent since the war ended," she continued.

Women in Politics

Turning to women's place in politics, the congresswoman, who is up for reelection to her 13th term from the 13th New Jersey District, issued a call to all women to take an active part in the forthcoming presidential campaign.

She said that she does not think women support other women as they should. "That the high cost of living has made women realize their importance as voters as never before... time for women to do the best work in politics is after rearing their families."

Mrs. Norton advised women to take part in community and welfare work if interested in politics. "It's a very narrow road between welfare work and politics," she explained.

Asserting that women can't get anywhere unless "women have faith in their own sex," she described Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "a leader of women."

Asked if her designation as chairman of the Credentials Committee signified progress for women and a bigger say in convention matters, she said that any advance for women will act as a stimulant for others to enter politics. She pointed out that at the 1944 Conventions the Republicans had 372 women delegates and the Democrats 467.

Mrs. Edwards, who was present at the press conference, said that the women would serve as co-chairmen of all important convention committees except the Credentials, which will be headed by Mrs. Norton and co-chaired by a man.

Wife, Husband, Take Top Medical Honors

When Mrs. Eliza Soyster, 24, accepted the John Ordroneaux prize for making the highest grades in the graduating class of George Washington University Medical School, yesterday, her husband, Peter, beamed approvingly. He, a fellow student, was second in the class.

"It was just luck that I won out over Peter," was how Mrs. Soyster explained it, with proper wifely modesty. And what will she do with the $70 which the prize entails? Buy a couple of good medical books, perhaps?

"Not on your life," said this wise young woman, the first ever to win this particular prize. "I'm going right out and buy myself one of those new long dresses."

The Soysters have known each other since they were freshmen in medical school. They were married last summer and in July they will begin their internship together at Los Angeles County Hospital in California. As yet, they are not sure what phase of medicine they will specialize in. But they hope to make it a team professionally.

Mrs. Soyster has lived in Washington most of her life and is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Shumaker. She attended Madeira School and Smith College. Her husband, a native Californian, is a graduate of Stanford University. The award was made at class day exercises in the board room at the University Library. Students in other schools of the university were given prizes at the same time, by Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president.

He was host later at a tea in honor of the students and members of their families.

The award was made at class day exercises, followed by a tea for students and members of their families in the board room of the University Library, with Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president, officiating.

Among those winning awards in other schools of the university were Roscoe Lewis Hoffacker, who captured the Joshua Evans 3d Memorial Award and the Alexander Wilbourne Weddell Award.

Fremont Jewell, president of the Student Council, received the Omicron Delta Kappa Award and Barbara Hanby received the Phi Beta Phi award given to "that member of the senior class who, throughout her course, has done the most to promote student activities."

Hadassah Hears Rep. Javits Attack British Palestine Policy

Representative Jacob Javits (R., United States in holding American citizens' Great Britain with financing and supporting the Arabs of Trans-Jordan in their fight against the new Jewish State of Israel.

The Congressman made his accusation before some 1500 members of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah attending the organization's twenty-seventh annual installation luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel.

Representative Javits said that the United States should take three important steps immediately to bring about peace in Palestine. These are as follows:

"Treat Israel the same as Greece. Give Israel the same kind of financial and military support given Greece to preserve her independence and lift the arms embargo immediately."

"Take the Lebanese government to task for its effrontery to the

Praise for Truman

Following Representative Javits' speech the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, which recently was divided into eight section groups, endorsed a resolution calling upon the United States to modify the arms embargo to permit sending of arms to the Jewish fighters in Israel.

To thunderous applause, Mrs. Joseph Freedman, president of the over-all chapter of Washington Hadassah, praised President Truman and the United States Government for prompt recognition of the State of Israel.

Introducing Representative Javits, Mrs. Samuel Lubin, newly elected president of the seaboard region of Hadassah, described him as "a liberal Jew."

Among those at the head table were Mrs. Louis Samuels, retiring president of the seaboard region of Hadassah who installed officers for the seven new Hadassah groups, and Mrs. Elihu Epstein, wife of the United States Delegate to the new State of Israel.

Taking the oath of office along with the newly formed seven groups were the overall officers of the Washington chapter including: Mrs. Joseph Freedman, president; Mrs. Benjamin Manchester and Mrs. Harry Rubinstein, vice presidents; Mrs. William Gichner, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry D. Friedman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Julius Diamond, treasurer; Mrs. Hyman Freehof, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Samuel Berenson, financial secretary; Mrs. Elroi Levine, administrative secretary; Mrs. Joshua Bernhardt and Mrs. Jacob Kammen.

Democratic Club Hears Java Princess, Greek Editor

Polygamy is on the wane in Java, and the war in Greece is not cold—it's hot, warm or smoldering. These were the two messages brought to the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday by Princess Malla Soenario of Java and Mme. Helen de Blahos of Athens, Greece.

The Princess, who is the daughter of the head of the State of West Java, declared that among western educated Javanese, polygamy is practically nonexistent. In the emancipation movement for women, she said, monogamy and the right of divorce and alimony have become the battle cry.

She stated that the Javanese are coming to accept the idea of national education, and that the women of Java are taking their place in the educational, social and cultural life of the country and are even beginning to be recognized in the government of the country.

Mme. de Blahos brought a picture of constant warfare from her native land. Daughter of the editor of the largest paper in Athens, and herself an associate editor, the speaker gave a brief over-all description of present conditions. She said the people were exhausted from continual strife. In regard to the death of George Polk, newspaper correspondent, she declared "We Greeks never murder strangers—we murder each other with gusto, but never strangers."

The speaker begged Americans to spend more time in comprehending the Greek situation. "We want sympathy and indulgence and we want to be understood," she said. Greece is a country blessed and cursed by the gods, she went on to say, and the people are fighting as hard today for their freedom from communism as they did in the days when they fought against the Romans, the Byzantines, the Turks and Persians.

Difficulty encountered by the Greek Army of 120,000 armed men in wiping out 20,000 guerrillas, she explained, was due to the fact that the latter make surprise moves from secret places, while the regular army is called upon to protect every village and hamlet. Guerrillas she described as a cruel minority brought up in the school of the Gestapo.

Princess Feted

Later in the afternoon Princess Soenario was honored at a tea by Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador. Mrs. Raymond Wilson, sister of the hostess, was a guest, as were Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge and Mrs. Paul Linebarger.

Mrs. Lois Clark of the National Education Association; Miss Katharine Lénot, Chief of the Children's Bureau; Mrs. Elizabeth Lindemann of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. Rachael of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department were also guests at the embassy.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 19, of Medium Height, Is Attached To Man, 23, Just Her Size, But She Feels Apologetic About His Stature; Is This Love?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My daughter Diane, 19, has fallen in love with Tom, who is 23. He seems to be a very fine character, all that a girl could hope for, and they have much in common, as to ideas and social objectives.

The problem is Diane's concern about Tom's small stature. She is a girl of medium height and Tom is just barely as tall as she. Although he is well proportioned and very nice looking for his size, nonetheless he is small for a man, has small hands and feet, and just isn't as large as a man should be to look well with Diane.

Diane tries to think she will outgrow her concern about this eventually, and in the meantime she has discarded heels, wears flat sandal-type footwear, avoids hats that might give her an appearance of extra height, etc., but underneath she has a disturbed shrinking feeling that "others will notice," or that her friends will think she is foolish to marry Tom.

Mother Argues

In Man's Favor

SHE HAS HAD other beaux who were large fellows and I believe her friends have made invidious remarks, and perhaps she and Tom don't look their best when dancing together; but I have pointed out that many couples of comparable stature have been (or are) very happily married, and it seems to me that small men always adore their wives more than others do. Am I right?

Diane and Tom are in school together, and whereas Diane's family has money and Tom has none, he is a hard worker and she is unspooled, so we are not thinking in terms of expediency. When they are together, she loves him very much, but when they are apart, I know this little worry is tugging at her heart.

Will it be there, causing regret, if and when she walks down the aisle to marry him? I feel she is forcing herself to overlook his size and concentrate on his good qualities, of which he has many; and I don't know whether to urge her to hold off and meet other boys, or let her go ahead with marriage plans. Please tell me how to advise her. O. N.

Smallish Men

Feel Defensive

DEAR O. N.: I don't think it's true that small men always adore their wives more than others do.

On the contrary, small men tend to be sensitive about their inconsequential size, and to compensate for their sneaking inferiority feeling on this score they are likely to act more dignified or lordly, or to "take themselves more seriously" than the big fellows who feel that Nature gave them advantageous stature.

Also, speaking of the implications of size, a reliable periodical reports that bright boys and girls are in general healthier, taller, heavier and better tempered than small or so-called normal size children the same age. So maybe one reason Tom works so hard is to keep abreast of the bigger, brighter lads who accomplish as much with less effort.

Girl Doesn't

Love the Lad

NOW about Diane's conflicted attitude. I take it to mean that Tom is smitten with her, seriously and idealistically, and that she is physically infatuated with him—or rather say, in love with being loved,—but not in love with Tom. Not being in love, and Tom being nobody's hero—as to looks, brains or athletic prowess—she feels shamefaced about her attachment, and hard-put to explain it to herself or others.

Love worthy of the name derives from authentic personal rapport, which is to say, reciprocal sympathy of mind and spirit; and where this complementary relationship exists, each "sees" the other in terms of endearing "qualities" when the pair are together or apart. Hence the saying, "Love is blind," in its large indifference to outward appearance.

Thus, inasmuch as Diane is for the most part unhappily aware of Tom's delicate physique and must "concentrate" to appreciate his "good qualities," I feel safe in saying she doesn't love him and I should advise her not to marry him. M. H.

I have quite a number of old felt hats to discard. I understand that there is an organization that collects these to send to China. Can you tell me where to send them? L. B.

One organization that collects such hats is Church World Service, Inc., which sends them to China and other countries for relief purposes. They are used in making slippers for small children, as insoles for shoes wearing thin, and in other ways.

To find out where your nearest Church World Service Collection station is located telephone National 4604.

What is the proper method of preparing iced tea so that it will not become cloudy? J. C. C.

Tea that is cooled quickly is clearer and more sparkling than tea which is cooled slowly, then iced or chilled. Prepare strong tea, using 1½ teaspoons leaves per cup. Pour hot tea over block of ice in large pitcher or over cracked ice in tall glass.

What is the best type of dust cloth for light wood? How do I prepare it? E. N. N.

A soft, lintless clean cloth is best for dusting all woods. If you wish to treat it so that it will more readily hold the dust, dip it in a solution of one pint of hot water to one fourth cup lemon oil. Squeeze the solution through the cloth, wring it out and allow to dry thoroughly.

I wish to store two tin-covered foot lockers in our basement, where luggage has previously mildewed. How can I protect the outside of the lockers? Also, how can I be sure that their contents (summer clothes in the winter and woollens in the summer) will be protected from mildew, silver fish and moths? E. N. N.

There is a liquid product on the market which can be applied to articles such as your lockers to prevent mildew. Apply it according to the directions which come with it. As for the contents, the most you can do is to be sure that they are absolutely dry before placing them in the locker by sunning on a low humidity day. Also sun the inside of the locker. When woollens are stored, be sure to sprinkle them amply with moth crystals. To protect rayons and starched cotton against silverfish, sprinkle with fresh pyrethrum powder. Be sure to place the lockers on boards to allow air circulation under them. Or, if it is possible, a better plan would be to place the lockers on a shelf well off the floor, allowing air space between the walls and the lockers.

How do I keep light wooden furniture clean and polished? What type of polish do I use, how often? How often do I have to wash it? Do I use soap and water? E. N. N.

WHEN the pastry chef's daughter gets married, she should have something pretty special in the way of a wedding cake. That's the way Joseph Tucci, chef at the Raleigh, felt about it, so he made this super-colossal, six-layer wedding cake for his daughter, Irma, who became Mrs. Jesse Beck on Saturday. Topped with a royal sugar heart, it also features a roadway of shell sugar that runs around the cake and under an arch of good luck. A miniature bride and groom stand at the beginning of the road, and a little further down is a small sugar automobile to carry them on their way satisfactorily with a mild soap and water. With normal use, it does not need to be washed oftener than once or twice a year. To do this, use very little water. Tightly wring a soft cloth out of warm soapy water. Use just enough soap to make a froth—for if you use a heavy suds, repeated rinsings will be required to completely remove the soap. niture a small area at a time, polishing the washed area dry before proceeding to another area. When the furniture is clean and dry, apply a good coating of either cream polish or wax, or the new furniture wax which comes in blond color. The wax will give it a more protective coat than polish. Apply the polish or wax in a very thin coat and follow it by a vigorous rubbing. The more vigorously rubbed, the lovelier and more protective the finish will be. This treatment needs to be applied to the furniture only three or four times a year. Between applications of polish or wax, the only treatment necessary is dusting and thoroughly rubbing.

I have a dark mahogany cedar chest that I would like to bleach gray to match the rest of the mahogany furniture in our bedroom. How should I go about getting a good-looking gray finish on this piece of furniture? Would you give me the steps that I should follow, starting with removing the present dark mahogany finish? V. C. J.

Let me say at the outset that the job you wish to do here is one which will take time, energy and patience. However, if you have an abundance of each, the results should be gratifying.

Start by removing all of the old finish with a good varnish remover. A slow acting one is safest for amateurs. Follow the directions which come with the remover. If, when the finish is removed, the wood is still too dark for the finish

Mirror Your Diamonds

If your diamond ring seems lusterless in comparison with others, noted designer John S. Gruen suggests mounting the stone in a setting of palladium or platinum. He explains that the white precious metals give extra sparkle to the facets of a diamond by reflecting and refract-ing the light rays, while yellow gold has a tendency to dim the glow.

Wedding Bells Ring

Miss Monica Day and Patrick Carroll Healy were married May 22 in the rectory of St. Matthew's Cathedral. The Rev. William J. Awaft officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Sherman Boutell 2d, novelist, who writes under the name of Anita Boutell. Mrs. Healy was educated abroad in England and in Switzerland, and during the war served in the Hospital Corps of the Waves.

Mr. Healy is the son of Mrs. Frank Healy and the late Mr. Healy. During the war he served in the Army Air Forces.

Smith-Williams

Miss Bert Louise Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Williams of Baltimore, became the bride of Leslie Andrew Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Smith of Lanham, Md., in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, College Park, Md., on May 15. The Rev. James Orth officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of lace with a tulle fingertip veil. Miss Betty Becker of Baltimore was maid of honor, wearing yellow taffeta. The bridesmaids were the Misses Betty Godey of Baltimore, Barbara Smith of Lanham, Mary Zimmerman of Kensington, Md., and Janet Thiescher of Kenwood, Md. They were gowned in turquoise taffeta and carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Albert A. Smith was his brother's best man. Lewis Williams, Jr., James Stapp, William Lowry and J. B. Walker were ushers.

Praise for the Southern Belle

SWEET WORDS of praise for the Southern woman and the manner in which she dresses comes from New York's Hat Queen, Lilly Dache.

"Southern women manage to wear completely casual clothes and still look as pretty as magazine covers," she announced in Manhattan after a trip to Dixie. "Because for so many generations they have maintained that femininity is more important than any other quality, they seem to know how to manage the new ultra-feminine fashions without looking cluttered or self-conscious."

"The only time you see women in the South look wrong is when they are frantically following the latest fashion news or else militantly defying trends. In general, however, they seem to be aware of fashion and know how to adapt it to their way of life."

Government workers! For news you

a message to those attending the American Public Relations Association's First International Public Relations Institute at American University

Creating public opinion is one job of public relations. The most essential "public" whose opinion must be favorable to any project is the government group in Washington. What the people think is made immediately apparent, through Washington's swarming press and radio corps, to the nation and the world.

But the end job of public relations is to transform thinkers into doers. It's good to have public opinion in favor of your project; it is essential to ultimate success that such favorable opinion be translated into action.

Here again that same Washington public is all important. It's the people up on Capitol Hill who transform ideas into legislation. It's the people in the marble buildings of the Federal Triangle who put that legislation into action. It's the people in judicial and quasi-judicial positions in Washington who make the decisions affecting that action.

To reach thinkers and doers alike, reach the eyes of Washington. You'll find the ones important to a public relations practitioner focused every morning on the pages of this very newspaper. That's why The Washington Post carries so much public relations advertising!

Friendly Theater Obliges Lost Child

Seattle (U.P.)—Probably the friendliest movie theater in town is the one in the Seattle Art Museum.

A picture is being shown. As an exciting moment approached, the movie was halted and house lights went on. Everybody thought the film had broken, but it turned out a small child had wandered from home base.

This Is How Reporters Kill So Much Time

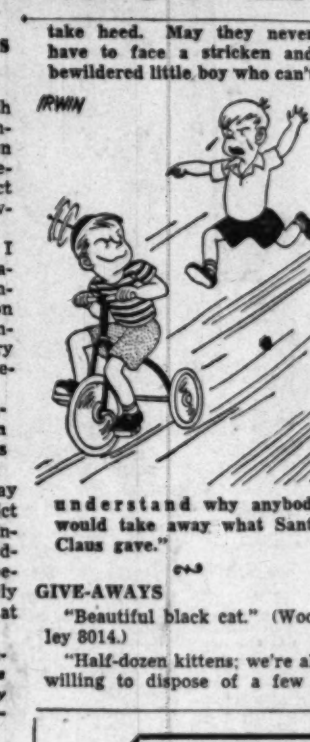

Mrs. Ruth Austin of 1331 14th st. n.w. gave me a busy morning's work with the observation that there appeared to be a one-minute difference in "correct time" between the Naval Observatory and Western Union.

After much maneuvering, I managed to check on the situation by synchronizing my chronograph with our Western Union studio clocks at WINX, listening for the Naval Observatory "tone," and immediately thereafter after calling District 2525.

The net result of all this investigation is the conclusion that the two time authorities are in substantial agreement.

However, some confusion may result from the fact that District 2525 apparently begins its minutes 30 seconds early. According to my watch, the voice begins saying "8:13" at precisely 8:12:30, and shifts to "8:14" at 8:13:30.

I imagine that this information will be of vast importance to women who are customarily 45 minutes late for their appointments.

"Two lovely male kitties, about 1 year old. I'm going abroad don't want to desert them." (Alexandria 5847).

Before I started running these Give-Away items, I used to think that the Government was the biggest industry in Washington.

Remember the story I ran on May 13, about Secretary of State George C. Marshall? It told how General Marshall asked a foreign service student what he was studying so diligently, and the student replied: "The unification of Germany, sir." Whereupon General Marshall quipped: "That's a subject which has also given me a great deal of concern."

At the time I used the item, I thought it was a pretty good story—and I'm glad to learn that my judgment has been vindicated. I see that John O'Donnell also thought enough of the yarn to use it—on May 20.

MISCELLANY

Barbara Sears of Silver Spring, Md., and G. S. Reed of the U. S. Naval Air Station at Patuxent, Md., team up to inform us that the "I'm my own grandfather" routine is as old as Mark Twain. The famous humorist did a poem on the subject, and District Liner Reed says he thinks the name was "Mark Twain's Puzzle."

John N. Newcomer, owner of Cliffside Cabins, Harpers Ferry, W. Va., writes, "Thanks for the unexpected plug, but we don't serve food. The Duncan Hines recommendation covers lodging facilities only. We could use a good restaurant or diner out here—why don't one of your District Liners start one?"

Richard Mattingly of 2200 Rhode Island ave. n.e. says: "You don't have to bother Herbert Hoover about those Duncan roll-front collars—the Ben Lee Laundry at 2127 Rhode Island ave. n.e. does a good job on them." Minnie Dickhaus of 4641 Hillside rd. se. has given her 14th pint of blood to the Red Cross. Mrs. R. A. Howard, jr., of 2031 Park rd. n.w., has found three French books which the owner can have by calling Adams 4989. . . . and Mrs. Monroe Hollis of 120 Fayette st., Staunton, Va., has a whole raft of old books about which she'd like some advice. She has inherited these volumes and suspects that they'd be of value to collectors. Anybody who's interested is invited to contact Mrs. Hollis. . . . Anti-Truman members of the local Alabama colony are getting a laugh out of the currently circulating wisecrack: "If Eisenhower won't run, maybe we'll have to lead off the convention roll call with our old battery: 'Alabama casts her 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood.'"

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Al Shean, of Gallagher & Shean, celebrated his eightieth birthday last week. He is the uncle of the Marx Brothers, and in the early stage of their career, just before they were to appear in a New York vaudeville house, he came to see their act. Then he told them it was outmoded, and, in collaboration with Groucho and Chico, wrote a new act for them. Just before the New York opening Harpo suddenly reminded him: "You forgot to tell me what MY lines are." Shean and the others realized that they hadn't written lines for Harpo. "You just go on," was Shean's advice, which started Harpo on his career as one of the world's foremost pantomimists, "you say nothing and just fool around, just fool around."

Raymond Swing will live in Jamaica, British West Indies. He's building a home fronting the Caribbean. . . . A plane-load of film stars will be flown from Hollywood to New York for the Command Performance at Madison Square Garden. Secretary Marshall is expected to attend. . . . Halle Selassie is firing all his British advisers. One of his aides is now in New York selecting Americans who will replace the British.

Robert E. Sherwood, whose book on Harry Hopkins will be serialized in Collier's, starting this week, has 40 crates of documents and names which Hopkins saved. Hopkins had kept them, expecting to write four books, and had said: "I've been waiting for 12 years to get back at some of those so-and-sos and now at last I can do it." But Sherwood has eliminated all the venom. . . . The book will be 500,000 words long. Sherwood junked another 500,000 words. He made three trips to England to check some of the material.

George Jessel, who returns to Broadway as the co-producer of "The Vigil," last produced "High Kickers." After the opening he wrote a note to a critic who had panned it: "Maybe you're right, but the business we do will tell. P.S.: Please pardon the pencil. I'm writing this in my new Rolls-Royce. It has everything except a fountain pen."

BURFORD TUNE

Alabama for Ike---Donkey Plan

By Drew Pearson. Citizens Army Won Past Wars

Without benefit of publicity, a significant backstage battle is being waged regarding the question: "To nominate or not to nominate Mr. Truman." A host of Democratic leaders would like to duck Harry's nomination, but most of them — at least from the North — are afraid to stick their necks out. They are secretly encouraging one of the do-gooding, however, and they are quite delighted to hold anybody else's coat.

But despite this hesitancy, more and more Democrats are quietly lining up — with the hope of blocking nomination on the first ballot. If Truman doesn't make it on the first ballot, they figure he's licked.

Illustrating the current inside strategy is what's happening regarding California. The California delegation is pledged to Truman. Under the law it can't switch until after the first ballot. But there's nothing to prevent the California delegation from "seconding" the nomination of General Eisenhower or of anyone else.

Therefore, the strategy now being discussed is for Alabama, first State to vote at the Philadelphia convention, to nominate Eisenhower and then for California to second him.

Britain's Silken Curtain

In Russia it's called the "iron curtain," in England it's sometimes called the "silken curtain" — at least where British diplomacy is concerned. The implication is that the British are much smoother at diplomatic sleight-of-hand.

For instance: In London the British Foreign Office candidly admits it has been shipping arms and paying money to King Abdullah of the Trans-Jordan. About 60 British officers are also commanding his troops. The British Foreign Office also states officially that Britain will stop sending aid as soon as the United Nations takes official action banning such aid.

That sounds fine. But —

Simultaneously at the United Nations, British delegates Sir Alexander Cadogan has played the leading part in blocking U. N. action on Palestine.

Thus the British right hand pretends not to know what the left hand doeth.

This recalls all too vividly the double role played by the British when Henry L. Stimson was trying to stop the Jap warlords in Manchuria in 1931-32. When the USA would deliver a note of protest to the Japs, the British Ambassador would deliver a similar protest — then drop around to the Japanese Foreign Office later to explain orally that the British didn't really mean it. Likewise, when the League of Nations was trying to apply sanctions against Mussolini's wanton attack on Ethiopia, it was the British who sanctimoniously preached about aggression but urged the sale of oil to Mussolini. This was the one war commodity he needed most.

Neglected Army Reserves

The avowed purpose of the manpower bills, now before Congress, is to train more reserves for a possible emergency. Yet the Army has been so busy lobbying for peace-time conscription, it has completely neglected the reserve program supposed to keep this manpower active after training is completed.

In fact, the Reserve Officers Association recently was forced to send its own representative before the House Appropriations Committee to plead for a paltry hand-out. Meanwhile, Secretaries Forrestal and Royal, heaping the drums for billions to build up the armed services, blandly admitted that their chief aim was to stockpile manpower which would go into the reserves.

Col. C. M. Boyer (inactive) pleaded the case for the reserve officers the other day behind closed doors.

"We feel," he told a House Appropriations Subcommittee, "that inasmuch as the Department of Defense has stated that the reserves are needed in the national security picture, then the Department of Defense should request sufficient funds and not make it necessary for us to appear."

The defense chiefs, however, had recommended only 80 million dollars for both Army and Air Force reserves, while Colonel Boyer testified they needed at least 200 million dollars. With such funds and proper support, the National Guard and reserves could also train new recruits and do it cheaper than the regular services, thus making the draft unnecessary.

Confederate Memorial Day Is Celebrated

Alexandria yesterday celebrated Confederate Memorial Day with a parade and memorial services at the grave of unknown Confederate soldiers in Christ Church Cemetery.

The observance marked the eighty-seventh anniversary of the day Alexandria's first contingent marched off to join the Confederate forces. The parade at the head of which was carried the original Civil War battle flag of the Seventeenth Virginia Regiment, moved from Lee Camp Hall, 806 Prince st., at 6 p. m., up Washington st. to the church.

Taking part in the parade were R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans; Martha Custis Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy; Alexandria Citizens Band; George Washington High School cadets and color guard from Russell Mitchell Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Floral tributes were placed on the Confederate mound by the two Confederate organizations. Principal speaker at the brief graveside service was the Rev. John T. Owens, Trinity Methodist Church pastor.

D. C. Liquor Prices Up for Discussion

Local liquor prices will come up for discussion this morning at 10, when a House District Subcommittee takes up a bill to permit wholesalers and retailers to fix prices of liquor sold to the consumers.

Two other bills, also up for consideration, would permit chain stores to obtain beer sales rights for all stores in a single application; and would make retail-wholesale transactions payable in cash.

D. C. Advertising Club To Elect Officers Today

New officers will be elected by the Advertising Club of Washington at a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. today at the Statler Hotel.

Ben Strouse, general manager of WWDC, is the candidate for president, and William F. Sigmund, partner of Harry J. Kaufman and Associates, advertising agency, has been nominated for first vice president. Also to be elected are a second vice president, secretary, treasurer and six directors.

Will Your Estate BENEFIT From The New Tax Law?

If you have not already done so, it may be to your family's advantage to review your Will in the light of the new Revenue Act.

If you are married, you can leave your wife up to 50% of your estate, virtually free of Federal tax at your death.

This new "marital deduction" is not automatic. It can be gained only if certain conditions are met.

You and your attorney are invited to discuss any phase of your estate affairs with one of our Trust Officers. A half hour's talk now may save your family thousands of dollars later.
